HARDING FUNERAL TRAIN ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON HIGHWAY WHERE NEW PRESIDENT TOOK OATH

The president of the United States sitting on the front steps of his father's farm home in the village of Plymouth, Vermont. The upper picture, showing Calvin Coolidge and his wife and his father, John C. Coolidge, was taken the day before President Harding died. Below is the farm house, and the barns, skirting the road where the grass does service as sidewalk; the place has been in the Coolidge family for generations. It was in this house that the new president, roused from sleep in the middle of the night by the news of Mr. Harding's death, took the oath of office, administered by his father in his capacity as a notary public.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE WILL NOT CHANGE THE HARDING POLICIES

WILSON WILL TAKE A PROMINENT PART IN HARDING FUNERAL

Audience with Over 100 Newspaper Men Serves to Reassure Nation a Strong Man Is Chief.

RULES AT HOTEL

Washington, Temporary White House, Willard Hotel, Aug. 4.—"All matters of international policy and government will stand temporarily as they are," President Calvin Coolidge announced today in his first conference with newspaper men.

No changes will be made nor any public announcement of the policy of the new administration until after the funeral of President Harding has been completed.

The President does not believe that any public announcement of the business of the new government should be made at this time. Things stand as they are until contrary announcements are made. This includes Mexican recognition and negotiation of all diplomatic affairs.

Mr. Coolidge is determined to carry on without change to such an extent that for the time being Brigadier General Sawyer, personal physician to President Harding, and George Christian, his secretary, will continue in their offices.

The President has given no thought as yet to men to fill their places. A proclamation will be issued by the President this afternoon concerning the death of his former chief.

A hundred newspaper men crowded the north room at the Willard hotel for Coolidge's first press conference.

The President met each of them at the door, greeting each by name, though he knew. He answered questions readily but he was determined that the impression should not be gleaned that any transition in government was to take place because he had succeeded to the Presidency.

Washington, Aug. 4.—President Calvin Coolidge today officially took over control of the government of the United States. In a temporary White House on a floor of the New Willard hotel, the President performed the first function of his new office.

The first official act of his administration was to approve the funeral arrangements for his chief, who died last night. Mr. Coolidge summoned all members of his cabinet who are in town—Secretary of State Hughes and Postmaster General New.

It was decided that the body of the late President will be met by the new executive and members of his official family and escorted to the White House when it arrives here Tuesday.

State Funeral Wednesday. The state funeral will take place on Wednesday when the body of Mr. Harding will be taken down Pennsylvania avenue, where he rode a little more than two years ago to his inaugural, to the capitol, where he will lie in state in the great rotunda.

The display that goes with the funeral of the chief of a state will be seen when the cortege moves from the White House to the capitol. There will be a military band playing the funeral march and an escort of soldiers.

HARDING IS FIFTH PRESIDENT TO REST IN SOIL OF OHIO

Washington, Aug. 4.—President Harding will be the fifth chief executive whose body has found a last resting place in the soil of Ohio.

William Henry Harrison, the ninth President, was the first to be buried in that state, interment being made at Fremont; Garfield at Cleveland and McKinley at Canton.

Four of the five died in office, Garfield and McKinley falling before assassin's bullets and Harrison dying from bilious pleurisy after serving only one month of his term.

PITTSBURG GROCER KILLED BY BANDIT WHOM HE WATCHED

Pittsburgh, Aug. 4.—Charles W. Riley, 38, was shot and killed early today by a burglar, whom he had surprised in his grocery store on Herron avenue here. Riley had slept behind the counter on watch for the burglar, who had entered the store several times lately and rifled the cash register.

The burglar escaped.

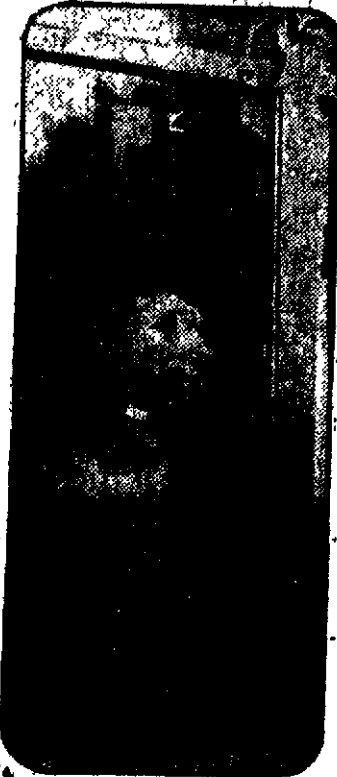

Helen Rosebud returned to her home in Madera after spending some time with friends in Clearfield.

W. F. Powell left today to visit with his children Johanna and Billy, who are in camps at Chautauqua Lake.

Miss Katherine Berry has returned from a vacation at Chautauqua Lake.

W. M. Fairwell, a former resident of Penn twp, now living in West Virginia was a Clearfield caller yesterday.

Waiting

Watchful waiting, one-time famous policy at the White House, has been revived by Laddie Boy, President Harding's Alredale. He watches every arrival at the executive mansion, hoping it's the absent president.

FRIDAY, AUG. 10TH COOLIDGE NAMES AS A DAY OF MOURNING

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—President Calvin Coolidge today issued his first proclamation, issued today, declared Friday, Aug. 10th, a day of national mourning for the late President, Warren G. Harding. On that day, he said, the people should gather in the respective places of worship and engage in ceremonies fitting the occasion.

It was also ordered that all executive offices of the Government be closed next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Plans for a community wide memorial service for President Harding began to take shape in Clearfield immediately following receipt of the sad news of his demise. These plans are being worked out at a meeting held in the Directors Room of the Clearfield Trust Company, the participants being Burgess Kittelberger, representing the municipal government and the heads of all the religious organizations in Clearfield.

As was the case when this Nation was called upon to mourn the tragic deaths of the martyred Garfield and McKinley the date for public memorial services for the nation was fixed by the President to succeed the martyr and the same procedure will be followed in this case. When the date has been decided upon the entire motion will gather in a joint assemblage in every community to pay that last tribute to the dead leader of the Nation.

Whatever churches and organizations may plan, their individual tribute cannot supersede a community service in harmony with a national event. This is it necessary for this gathering this afternoon to plan for Clearfield's memorial. The date fixed by National proclamation will be the date for the service. This date has been set for Friday, Aug. 10th. Watch The Progress for further announcement.

MORSE AND SEVEN ASSOCIATES ARE FOUND NOT GUILTY

Washington, Aug. 4.—Charles W. Morse, ship builder and financier, charged with defrauding the Shipping Board on war time contracts, was acquitted by a jury of the District of Columbia court here today.

The three sons of Morse and four other men, held under the same indictment, were also acquitted.

Thousands Line Route of Fast Train Which Will Not Arrive East Until Tues. Morning.

SERVICES FRIDAY

En-route with President Harding's funeral train, August 4th.—Bearing as its precious freight the Nation's illustrious dead, shrouded in sorrow and weariness, the special funeral train carrying President Harding's body to Washington was speeding across the country today.

Almost every mile of the way from San Francisco has furnished evidence of the Nation's sorrow. All through the night as the train plunged on at a speed equalled only by overland flyers, men, women and children could be seen standing along the tracks, the men barcheaded and all wearing a crushed and reverent look.

The flag draped casket rested in the same car in which the late President journeyed across the continent on his way to Alaska. At its head and foot the guard of honor—two soldiers and two sailors—stood rigidly at attention.

As the Presidential funeral train crosses the full breadth of the beleaved country millions will observe its passing. In the lighted car is a profusion of flowers. There is a simple rosewood coffin with Warren Gamaliel Harding inscribed on a silver plate. It is guarded by soldiers, sailors and marines, chosen from the attachment that accompanied the President on the Henderson.

Although the train will not pause for ceremony, it will proceed at a slower pace through towns and cities. Only for operating requirements will it halt before reaching the capitol.

The crowds that stood in the night were obviously moved for no sound came from them. They stood in mute respect as the train with the flag draped coffin in the last car went by. In the same car was the brave and tragic figure of Mrs. Harding, facing still several days of need to keep fighting her grief, still too much in the public eye to be allowed to go away by herself with her sorrow.

It was impossible for Mrs. Harding to rest as she needs to rest. Her nerves are too unstrung for quiet sleep; her heart throbbing too painfully to the new wound to permit her the repose that she should have. But her spirit was unbroken, her poise unimpaired. Mrs. Harding gives new evidence almost every hour of the magnificence of her character. Other members of the party, worn out by grief and loss of sleep rested today.

Sparks, Nev. Aug. 4.—President Harding's funeral train passed through here, moving slowly through barcheaded crowds gathered on the station platform at 6:00 a. m. today. The train was preceded by a pilot engine and coach, which will run fifteen minutes ahead of the funeral train across the continent.

Hazen, Nev. Aug. 4.—The special train bearing the casket of Warren G. Harding passed through Hazen at 7:35 a. m. today.

Practically the entire population of the little city turned out and lined the tracks as the special swept through. The train was running exactly on schedule.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—An avenue of mourning, stretched tonight across a land of sorrow. It began here at the Golden Gate and it ended in the Nation's capital, and over it, for four days and four nights, will travel a funeral train bearing the body of President Harding.

When the train, draped in black, drew out of black-draped station here tonight, there began the saddest transcontinental trip in the history of the Nation. There have been funeral trains bearing the bodies of chief executives of the republic before, but no such train ever passed over so long a route.

Ninety and a half hours will be required for the trip, when it is ended at 1:20 p. m. Tuesday, the body of Warren G. Harding will carry a white shroud in the White House where he served the American people for nearly two years.

PATROL TO CATCH WE

By A. P. HOLLINGSWORTH
(United Press Staff Correspondent, Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 4.—) Police of other elements to enforce prohibition in Pennsylvania may lead to heading bootleggers by means of a "highway patrol" charged with responsibility of regulating traffic on public highways.

A corps of 125 men will be placed on the roads of the state shortly to augment the limited number of state police and help relieve the burden of law enforcement of the constabulary. Assumed the reins of state government.

Although the highway patrol has limited powers, as state police they might assume duties such as those of search and seizure as well as arrest.

Governor Pinchot finds that the highways are the avenue of crime as well as pleasure and peaceful pursuits. To catch the bootlegger, there must be an adequate force on the roads that lead in and out of the state.

In the event that his law enforcement program fails because of an inadequately manned police force, it was explained, the highway patrol may assume some of the responsibility of checking the liquor traffic.

Plans are being laid now by the governor and his law enforcement officers, the attorney general and the superintendent of state police, to conduct an intensive campaign against bootlegging and crime of every description.

"I am pleased with the progress already made, and I am confident that the crooks and criminals who are fighting are going to lose and lose completely. I would be a poor American."

WEAVER RECITAL A MUSICAL TREAT SOLOIST WAS FINE

The organ recital given in Trinity Methodist church by Mr. F. W. Weaver, assisted by Mrs. Edna Dufon, was a most enjoyable event.

Clearfield people had the pleasure not only of hearing an artist of rare ability, but one of their own boys who by his untiring perseverance and hard work has reached a point in his career where he is a source of joy to himself and all who hear him. Mr. Weaver's own composition, "The Squirrel," and his arrangement of "Joy to the World," which Mrs. Dufon sang beautifully, were much appreciated. In all Mr. Weaver's numbers his technique was flawless and his pedal work amazing. The Bach "Fugue" being beautifully rendered. We are deeply indebted to Mr. Weaver and Mrs. Dufon for a wonderful musical evening and it is the earnest wish of all Clearfield people that Mr. Weaver have continued success in his chosen work.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

People tell us there is nothing in this "luck sto y," but do say, however, "there is a tide in the affairs of men, which, if taken at its flood, leads on to fortune." "Silent Cal" Coolidge, our President, was certainly waiting at hand when "opportunity" knocked at his door at three or four short years ago. Because of that courage handed down from generations before, some of whom braved the dangers of an uncharted sea and bleak New England shores as Mayflower Pilgrims, Coolidge took a man's grasp of an intolerable condition growing out of a misguided policeman's strike in Boston and when he handled that emergency in a manner which won for him the plaudits of the nation, "Silent Cal" discovered to his undoubted amazement that the tide in his affairs had not only set in, but that he had launched his boat at its very crest and it was bearing him on to that fortune every red-blooded American boy dreams of—the Presidency of the greatest nation under God's sun.

Swept into the vice presidency a few months after the Boston episode by popularity gained by reason of his "safe and sane" handling of that situation, created by "Lady Luck" to make Cal Coolidge, in three short years, by the breaking of another link in the chain, he is elevated to the place of the greatest power in the hands of any one man, and takes up the onerous burdens of that existing position with the best wishes of one hundred and ten million men, while every loyal American says to himself "thank God for the calibre of man that was chosen for Vice President in 1920." A world of opportunity is at his hand, may he again prove his mettle by solving the many problems he will meet—right.

Acting on the idea that shade trees should be useful as well as ornamental, Salem, Oregon, planted walnut trees for shade. The result is that the city has 1,600 fine walnut trees along her streets, which produce thousands of bushels of delicious nuts. A walnut tree will sprout from the seed in three weeks after being planted. This ought to be a good hint to other towns.

Rural mail carriers cover 1,191,000 miles of highway in delivering letters and packages to residents of the United States living in places remote from towns, villages and cities.

Thirty millions of individuals receive their mail by way of the rural free carrier service, according to an official statement issued by the Post Office Department.

The statement shows that the United States free delivery system puts more persons in direct daily contact with central communities than any other postal system in the world.

The system has been extended in the last year to serve an additional 350,000 persons. Thousands of new carrier routes have been added.

Merchants and manufacturers are anxious to have the government make further extensions, especially with respect to the delivery of parcel post matter. Through the present system, they point out, nearly one-fourth of the nation's population is brought into close contact with every section of the country despite the fact that that group of the population is located in districts with which communication and transportation is otherwise slow. Farm life is being made more and more attractive, it is emphasized, at a time when migration to the cities has developed into an economic problem of national import.

Approximately 6,500,000 families live on rural mail routes. Illinois leads all other states as a beneficiary of the system, having 2,629 routes, covering 70,380 miles. Ohio ranks second with 2,540 routes, covering 63,318 miles.

BIG BUSINESS IN LOUISIANA

Farm Bureau Federation Has Saved Members More Than $75,000 in Three Months.

The purchasing department of the Louisiana Farm Bureau federation, through G. A. Foss, purchasing agent, has done business totalling more than $200,000 for the first three months of 1923, and has saved farm bureau members in Louisiana more than $75,000.

The co-operative purchases made include 5,500 tons of acid phosphate.

old to the farmers at a price of $14.25 a ton f. o. b. New Orleans, against a general market price of $25 a ton; 2,500 tons of nitrate of soda at an average of almost $20 a ton; and 100 tons of nitrate of lime, saving not estimated.

Mr. Foss now has a deal on for several hundred thousand rice and potato bags for the use of Louisiana commodity associations, and it is expected that a considerable saving will be made over the general market price.

HIGHWAY PATROL TO CATCH WETS

can if I doubted them," Governor Pinchot told the United Press in stating his position on enforcement.

"We have made a good start and the state is moving along with us. There is much ground yet to be covered, but I have three years and a half left to cover it," he said.

The effort of the governor to make Pennsylvania dry has been slow and tedious. It was marked at the very beginning with reverses by the legislature and from elements opposed to drastic measures.

Figures compiled by the state police for the first five months of "dry" enforcement under the Pinchot policy show nearly 2,000 arrests. Yet of the number only 241 cases reached the stage of court sentences after going through the process of action by grand juries. One hundred of the 241 were fined and others given sentences averaging from two to six months.

The first step in laying up the state was the abolition of the saloon obtained from the legislature upon the insistence of Governor Pinchot. The bootleggers were next to be dealt with. Pinchot said he would run them out of the state. This has been a difficult because of the lethargic attitude of the judiciary over which he had no control. Elimination of the saloon was a factor in encouraging bootlegging that he did not an illegal sale of liquor.

Cooperation of law-abiding agencies was sought and the assistance of county and local authorities enlisted. The response to this request has been negligible. Support has been promised by the state W. C. T. U. in raising a $255,000 fund for the enforcement of law which was denied by the legislature.

Governor Pinchot maintains that prohibition deserves equal attention with the other laws of the commonwealth and the nation by enforcement agencies. He insisted that the money asked of the assembly for this purpose be placed to his credit for the "enforcement of all laws." He would not permit it to be earmarked for prohibition and thus his appropriation was lost.

No Cause to Worry. A society "to prevent the Bible from being scoffed at in colleges" has been started. The Bible has been scoffed at for about 2,000 years, both in and out of colleges, and it remains the international "best seller." Why worry?—Minneapolis Journal

Pres. Coolidge Will Not Change Harding Policies

Members of the Supreme Court, cabinet members, diplomats and representatives of every phase of Washington's official life will be in the presidential train.

At the capitol the catfallops will be placed beneath the draped dome in the rotunda where others of the nation's dead have lain in solemn state. Soldiers and sailors will stand guard around the casket. After the funeral services, the people will be permitted to pay their last respects to the dead President and to lay wreaths beside him, and at 4 o'clock the body will be removed to the funeral train and started to Marion, Ohio, for interment.

Rush White House Repairs. The executive offices of the White House are torn up in the process of remodeling. The work is being rushed so that Mr. Coolidge may go to upon his return from the funeral at Marion, Ohio.

There is much speculation and a great deal of watery talk as to what will follow when he really starts to work for the last time, having been a president's predecessor.

Probable Changes. Mr. Coolidge, it is felt, will certainly sponsor the World Court, farm credit on a safe policy and a conservative administration of law. He will have no Vice President. The office will be vacant until the next election. Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican whip, will probably be the administration candidate for the chair of presiding officer in the Senate.

The possibility that Attorney General Daugherty, and possibly Secretary of Commerce Hoover, might leave the Coolidge cabinet is being freely discussed. Daugherty has wanted to retire for some time.

Coolidge Light Eater. Washington, Aug. 4.—President Calvin Coolidge arose at eight o'clock today. He breakfasted at 10:30 after sending for his Secretary, Edward J. Clark.

The President ate for breakfast a shredded wheat biscuits and cream, and coffee. This is Mr. Coolidge's favorite breakfast.

Europe Studies "Cal." London, Aug. 4.—Having flooded the cables with messages of sympathy for Mrs. Harding and ordered state mourning for America's dead President, heads of European governments turned their attention to what the foreign policy of the United States will develop into under his guidance.

London morning papers devoted many columns to Mr. Harding's passing and speculation regarding President Coolidge today, and any scrap of information about the "silent man" is eagerly sought.

Renovating Rug. If a rug has developed a hole, place a piece of canvas at the back and choose some coarse wool to match the prevailing colors, darning them from underneath to the top, leaving little loops on the right side. The rug will take on a new lease of life.

Peas are few and far between, and used by them for their high protein content. It is a good idea to have a few peas in the garden, as they are known just what to do with them. To make a pea soup, take one pound of peas, wash them, and boil them in water until they are tender. Then add a little salt and a dash of pepper, and serve with a slice of butter.

OWSLEY HONORED BY FRENCH

Award of Order of Merit of Union Nationale des Combattants to National Commander.

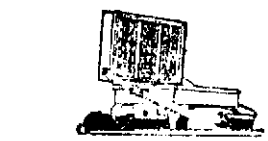

Alvin Owsley, national commander of the American Legion, has received the award of the Order of Merit of the Union Nationale des Combattants, composed of more than a million French veterans of the World war. Only fifty other men have been awarded this decoration.

Presentation was made by Charles Bertrand, secretary of the French organization, who was named president of the International Veterans' federation at its last gathering in New Orleans. The latter organization, which represents fifteen million veterans of allied forces, has begun to wield considerable power in international affairs. The American Legion is the member body in this country.

The decoration is in the form of a handsome bronze medal, suspended from a ribbon with a ribbon of the French society's colors. Accompanying the medal, as a personal memento from M. Bertrand, was a bronze plaque, indicating his unalterable affection for Commander Owsley and the American Legion.

TEXAS POST GIVES CONCERTS.

Regular weekly concerts by members of the American Legion have been given by the Paris (Tex.) post of the organization for a period of nearly nine months. Widow Approves Plans
The arrangements for the trip to Washington were made by the grieved members of the President's party today while literally thousands stood about the hotel or walked slowly through the lobbies. The plans all were submitted to Mrs. Harding for final approval, and she was able to give them her attention, for she was bearing up well under the load of sorrow.

Mrs. Harding obtained some rest last night, retiring at 1 o'clock and sleeping fitfully until morning. Throughout the day she moved about the presidential suite always, according to those who met, more mindful of others than of herself. She remained steadfast to her determination made last night not to break down, but whether she could continue to do so during the long trip was only time will tell.

Supporting Mrs. Harding in withstanding her sorrow, were messages of sympathy from all parts of the world. Telegrams poured into the hotel all through the day. They came from two former Presidents, Woodrow Wilson and William Howard Taft; from members of the cabinet, from governors and mayors; from rulers of foreign countries and from men unknown beyond the borders of their communities.

Bearing Up Under Blow
Late in the day, Colonel George Palmer, past president of the Mystic Shrine, called to offer the sympathy of San Francisco Shriners and Mrs. Harding stood for five minutes talking to him, showing the effects of her grief only in a few tears that trickled down her cheeks. This was but one example of how courageously she was standing the strain.

Much of the work of making plans for the future was done by George L. Christian, Jr., who had served as Mr. Harding's secretary for years. Mr. Christian was in Los Angeles when the Chief Executive passed away, having gone there to read to the Knights Templar of Hollywood what proved the President's last public expression, and he was hurriedly carried to San Francisco by special train. The four cabinet members in San Francisco—Secretaries Hoover, Wallace and Work and Attorney General Daugherty—assisted in this task.

The schedule for the funeral train to Washington, as announced prior to its departure follows:

Leave San Francisco Friday, August 3, at 7 p. m.; arrive at Ogden Saturday, August 4, at 9:05 p. m.; arrive at Omaha, Monday, August 6, at 2:15 a. m.; arrive at Chicago Monday, August 6, at 3:30 p. m. and arrive at Washington, via Baltimore & Ohio, Tuesday, August 7, at 1:30 p. m.

The train itself is much the same as that which left Washington on the afternoon of June 20, carrying the President, full of hope, on the trip across the continent to Tacoma, Wash., where the chief executive, Mrs. Harding and members of their party boarded the naval transport Henderson for the voyage to Alaska. The private car Surber, which carried the President then, and from which he greeted thousands in rear-platform addresses, had been set aside to carry his body back.

Its authorized capitalization is $100,000 with $25,000 paid in at the start. It proposes to affiliate with the National Federated Fruit Growers, Inc.

Headquarters of the exchange are to be in Benton Harbor, with branch offices at other points where the volume of business may warrant such office.

The exchange looks forward to affiliation with the Michigan state farm bureau under the farm bureau's commodity plan of control. Such affiliation will enable the exchange to secure for its members in a more direct way the seed, purchasing, traffic, publicity, legislative, wool and organization services of the state farm bureau and to co-operate with the other great commodity exchanges in exchanging sales services and in getting together on matters of common interest.

The "silent man" is on the job.

What a world of confidence and peace of mind is inspired by the thought expressed in that sentence.

Having recovered from the shock of President Harding's death the next thought of the average citizen was, "who will lead us?"

So little had been heard of our Vice President. His principal bid for consideration when he was made the nominee three years ago was that he had made a record as Governor of Massachusetts and particularly because of his handling of the Boston police strike. Coupled with this was an endorsement by Harding, already the nominee for the presidency.

It will be recalled that President Harding repeatedly paid high tribute to Calvin Coolidge and, although previously Vice Presidents had little to do but preside over the Senate, President Harding took the Vice President into his confidence, invited him into all cabinet meetings, accepted his advice and made his decisions after conferences with the Vice President.

Mr. Harding had often expressed the belief that the Vice President should be permitted to become as familiar with the problems of government as the President himself and all but said that the time might come when death might place him in the President's chair. It is now reasonable to believe that Mr. Harding had just such a possibility in mind when he gave his approval to Calvin Coolidge as his running mate.

Calvin Coolidge took to the stump and campaigned with clear-cut logic and argument. Each day he grew stronger until when election day rolled around people voted as much for "Silent Cal" as for Mr. Harding. Then he took his job and began to say what he had said in public or in the news, although it was known that he was familiar with the counsel and guide—every activity of the Harding administration.

Now that the time has come when this silent man must shoulder the responsibility of being the President of these United States, it is an occasion for thanksgiving. First, because he is the type of man he is. Second, because Mr. Harding was foresighted enough to select him and broad visioned enough to school him.

We do not know what kind of a President he will make, but he ought to be better than one selected by politicians and certainly better than one of the many who are so anxious to put themselves forward by howling calamity and setting themselves up as saviors.

He is fifty-one years of age, strong, vigorous and able. He works hard and talks only when necessary, but when he talks it is in language that is understandable and directly to the point.

"Silent Cal" is on the job.

WHAT HE SAID OF HIS WORK

(From Harding's speeches during the presidential campaign.)

My whole job as president will be, first to get the people of the United States together in better understanding, and then to get the nations of the world to a friendlier understanding of a workable world league.

I believe the people want an ordinary man as president, being a little tired of supermen and the ways of such.

Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt are the three greatest men in American history.

McKinley was a great figure; the biggest contribution he made to our country was to wipe out nearly all of the sectional feeling. If God is with me I will try to obliterate all that's left.

A mighty good guide in political life is the "feeling" of the people. No man could have worked up as I have worked without getting it.

The people of this country are as sound at heart as a good red apple. They always come back to the sane, sound ways of business and of government.

Political Paragraphs

ODELL HAUSER'S COLUMN

This has been "Old Home Week" in Harrisburg. Some of our leading statesmen have been away from the seat of government in foreign parts—such as Milford and the Great Lakes—but this week they have returned. What brought them back was the by now well-advertised punitive expedition State Treasurer Snyder is conducting into the state payroll, and more particularly that part of it which lies closest to the heart of the Pinchot administration.

The preliminary steps in the great battle of the code were outlined in these paragraphs last week, the writer adapting himself to the role of war correspondent as well as in him lay. There is no excuse for anyone's not knowing that the battle rages on, and since the battle cry has sounded, the warriors are hastening to the field of combat. Hence the "Old Home Week."

The Governor has deserted the quiet glades of Pike County or the asphalt pavements of Harrisburg, even though he had hoped to dwell with the pike and pickerel a while longer. Auditor General Lewis, the great mystery of the present situation, cut short his vacation trip over the Great Lakes and ended his way to where his books and records speak to him in accents of reassurance.

State Treasurer Snyder, commander-in-chief of the insurgent army, now wears his shoe leather out on the gravelled walk of Capitol Hill, instead of traversing the environs of Pottsville in a limousine.

It all comes under the head of tough luck when it happens in August, and particularly in August of a year when there is so much to campaign under way and everybody ought to be at home as much as possible, seeing that the folks in the county elect the right kind of commissioners and such so that the cause of good government may triumph.

The mile may play when the cat's away, but "Old Home Week" in Harrisburg makes it necessary for the mice to get down to business. In other words, the chiefs being present, the whole army of subordinates, not to mention the camp-followers, is right there too.

This may be the cause of one of the phenomena I have observed this week in talking to some of the pillars of our state government. This may be expressed by calling it the week of gossip. It is disturbing gossip, the kind that generally tags along with a period of pressure and tenseness in political circles.

And so I have heard a series of horror stories that would make your eyes pop. I am not going to tell them all, and I am not going to mention names, because I imagine they are somewhat exaggerated. But I will reflect some of it, because it is undoubtedly a real element in the situation which now prevails, and an element which will undoubtedly find a reflection in some of the actions that are taken.

The stories are mostly concerned with difficulties within the Pinchot administration. One of them, and the one which may soonest be seized by the ruff of the neck and projected into public attention, has to do with the head of a department of state government which happens to be tied into the code difficulties.

Rumor hath it that this department head is getting deeper and deeper into hot water with the governor's office, and not only with the governor's office, but with outside elements influential in having secured a seat in the cabinet for this particular official.

It would appear that through conflicting opinions given by this official to various persons interested in a certain subject, and then by failing to adopt a definite and well-informed attitude when advice on this subject was asked in the governor's office, this department head led Mr. Pinchot into a course of action which has since been regretted.

The tendency of all concerned, including the administration, will, of course, be to keep the incident under cover and seek to minimize it. It is too early at this stage of the administration's history to think seriously about changing commissioners or secretaries, as I believe we must now tell them to be in style with the code. But sooner or later we may hear of a change in this department.

There are other bits of gossip alleging internal difficulties in the administration. One department head, who is less known to the public life of Pennsylvania than some of the others, is said to have announced that unless he secured more independence of action in conducting the business under his charge, he would get out. Another member of the administration, though not the head of a department, who was very prominently identified with the drafting of the administrative code, is said to have notified those in authority already that he had set the date for severing his connection with the state government. If this occurs, it will probably not be until after the present battle of the code is settled by adjudication of the courts.

There are other tales of trouble. But we need go no further into them. Internal dissensions in an administration are by no means of rare occurrence. They are often produced by subordinate figures in the administration. There is every evidence that the present difficulties are largely the product of that condition. Some of the department heads do not get along any too well with one of the Governor's principal advisers. Others are jealous of his power.

These matters generally adjust themselves as soon as they become sufficiently marked to attract attention and acquire a nuisance value.

The principal unfortunate aspect is that they come just at the time when the administration is in the midst of its necessity to meet State Treasurer Snyder's attack on the code.

So far this week the great battle of the code has produced the "Old Home Week" at Harrisburg, even if it has produced nothing else. So probably the hotel keepers like it anyway.

The week started with Mr. Snyder under notification by the Attorney General that the latter's legal advice must govern him in his actions, to which Mr. Snyder had replied that he couldn't see it that way. On Monday Auditor General Lewis joined Mr. Snyder in his position, arguing that the Attorney General was wrong when he asserted the acts of 1915 and the code bind all state officials to follow his legal opinion. Messrs. Snyder and Lewis evidently think they are entitled to go out and hire their own lawyers, and they intend to do so.

Attorney General Woodruff's notification to them is generally taken as merely a technical step on his part to complete his case toward asking the courts to compel Mr. Snyder to pay the salaries that Mr. Snyder refuses to pay.

The whole matter still hinges on when the Attorney General brings his action in the Dauphin County court to mandamus the State Treasurer.

The beginning and middle of the week passed without Mr. Woodruff's having gone into court. State Treasurer Snyder is said to have prepared a whole flock of injunctions against officials performing their duties under the code. When mandamus meets injunctions the doings will begin. Let's wait and see.

LOOK OUT

By EDWARD THIERRY

N E A Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.

Look out for the gilded mining man.

Warnings—financial storm warnings—have been issued by Edward A. Schwab, chief investigator of the National Vigilance Committee, that oil stock schemes are being abandoned in favor of mining promotions.

"The public," says Schwab, "is always canvassed in waves. The oil wave is waning, and the mining wave is beginning."

"A wholesale exodus of oil promoters has occurred in Texas, where Fort Worth was the headquarters of the stock-selling boom. Exposures by the National Vigilance Committee and the Better Business Bureaus had these results:

"Nearly 100 were indicted by federal grand juries in the Fort Worth district.

"Prison sentences aggregating more than 25 years have been imposed on six defendants in the first three cases brought to trial.

"Fines in excess of $30,000 have been assessed in addition."

Now, warns Chief Agent Schwab, the "wise one" are drifting into the mining promotion game.

"A flood of literature," he says, "is beginning to cover the country, dangling 500 per cent dividends before the public eyes in gold, silver and copper mine developments."

"Good mines and real developments are being injured by those who play the sucker list. Experienced business men are not easily caught by the frauds of operators, but the victims are usually widows, school teachers, clerks, laborers and stenographers whose savings are caught in shady notes."

As for Schwab estimates that $500,000,000 was lost during the past year in fake stock schemes.

"Life time and markets are being injured by financial artists," he says. "The United States treasury alone estimates that $400,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds have been exchanged for two thousand securities."

Get-Together Spirit

A good way to make people love one another and to teach them to combine for general improvement is to give them a chance to get together for a harmless fun but will refresh their minds and soothe their nerves, and if these are not the principal purposes of the church they are at least among its objects. Progress Editorial For Women

THINGS, OUR GOLDEN CALF

By Florence Davies

Talk about "sermons in stones," why sometimes there's a whole volume of sermons in a single sentence!

"And so I'm going away and let her get a divorce," said the younger of the two men, whom I passed on the street the other day. "She's met another guy with a yacht and an automobile and an aeroplane and everything, and I'm not going to buck her."

So that was it, was it? She had gone after Mammon and he wasn't going to fight her.

What a way to put it! He wasn't going to fight her, he said. One would have thought it was the other man he wasn't going to fight. You would have expected him to say he wasn't going to fight him, whoever he was this "other guy" with his yacht and his automobile and his aeroplane, which you took with a grain of salt.

But evidently the injured husband didn't exactly blame this "other guy." He seemed to realize that all was fair in love and war, or maybe after all, he recognized the fact that the other man, plus all his worldly possessions, was more than a match for him. But as a matter of fact, he really wasn't either of them that he had a fight. It was the automobile and the yacht and everything, it was just "things" that were against him the things that this man had.

"She's not a guy with a yacht and an automobile and everything." It was the "everything," the things, the fast car, the speed boat, the dinner parties and the bouquets and all the rest of the things, things, things, that men with money can buy.

That is what this chivalrous chap who was going to step out and let her have her way, had to fight, not "him" or "her."

Just stop and argue it out for your self. Was it "her" that he had to fight the real her that he used to know, the girl herself whom he had loved and married, and who once loved him?

Of course not, if it had been the same old girl, he wouldn't have had to fight for her, for she would have wanted him as once she did. It was this new woman who couldn't resist things, the things that money will buy. Neither was it the other man that he had to fight.

How much of a chance would this other guy have had, when of his motor car and speed boat and his gay dinners and gifts of jewels or flowers? Suppose he had been poor, poorer than her husband could ever have given her anything but a little ride in a borrowed tin limo, or a couple little moonstone ring? No, the man who was going to give up wouldn't have had to fight "him."

Yes, it was "him" he was fighting—possessions that so often possess their owners, master their wills and paralyze their sense of value—the "things" of the world before which we all bow down and worship, in a certain motion and misguided so, we are bowed down and worship the golden calf.

Maybe the calf war isn't really golden, you know. But it is symbolic.

Take the "it" may go on swiftly rolling wheels, a car on gently cutting waves. And there are girls aplenty who seem to wonder, the moment a girl meets a man and in choosing either a life, a friend or a life partner.

EFFICIENCY IN FIRE DEPARTMENT SERVICE

Unique Zone Plan Originated in Chester County, Pa.

To secure the greatest possible efficiency in fire department service for the rural districts of the Chester county (Pa.) farm bureau has originated a unique fire zone plan.

The actual conception of the plan was probably started as a result of a report made to Maj. C. M. Wilcox, of the state bureau of fire protection from the Chester county farm bureau for closer co-operation.

At a meeting of farmers Major Wilcox urged organization with townships as the unit. The first township to get organized was Westtown township, which was the most completely organized township of any in the county for farm bureau work.

The principal factors of the fire zone plan started by this township, and subsequently developed for the remaining townships, were dependent upon the cooperation of the following agencies:

Fire department service represented by the Chester County Firemen's association and the borough council of West Chester.

Bell Telephone company. Township supervisors. Roads arranged in the zone directory, under their supervision and contributions made to the fire department.

State police under state bureau of fire protection. Local fire service under local fire companies.

All lines are reported to the zone director and to the nearest fire department. The zone director gets the information and directs the fire department to arrive at the location of the fire. This plan is turned over to the zone director, because he is trained to law his territory better than it is possible by a dozen or more untrained fire department operators.

Once the fire is on the ground they are in a position to decide whether extra equipment of any kind is needed, or the state police would be notified. The importance of neighborhood service and the value of state police becomes more and more evident every day by reason of the fact that hundreds of automobiles block fire department service and bring strangers who are not slow in taking advantage of the chance to loot the premises of the fire victim.

The West Chester fire zone includes all or part of 11 townships in Chester county, and two townships in Delaware county, all points of which are within ten miles of the fire department.

GENERAL COMMITTEE BUSY ON FIREMEN'S CONVENTION WORK

Last night's meeting of the Executive Committee of the Clearfield Firemen's Association who have in charge the convention was a lively one.

The committee, which met in the evening at the home of Mrs. J. H. Hart, discussed the many details of the convention which is to be held at the Clearfield Hotel on Monday evening and if you have not yet bought a ticket or if you have bought a small space and feel that you must buy more, get it now with it. It is White at Law's Drug Store and he will send it to you around to you.

This year's convention should eclipse anything that the district has ever attempted. Clearfield should play the most glorious host to the visiting firemen.

You are Clearfield. Are you going to do your part?

Cement of Wood Ashes. Wood ashes and common salt, made into a paste with water will stop cracks in masonry and fill holes in plaster.

Clearfield before they come. We want them to form a great opinion of this city. This means that everybody will have to do their bit toward making this part of the convention a success. The forms for the program positively close on Monday evening and if you have not yet bought a ticket or if you have bought a small space and feel that you must buy more, get it now with it. It is White at Law's Drug Store and he will send it to you around to you.

DO YOU LIKE POETRY?
IF YOU DON'T, YOU WILL

Many people don't like poetry—or think they don't. Of course, there's a reason for what they think they think—they haven't heard or read the right kind. And yet, if you ask the man in the street to tell you the names of any six pieces of literary composition which are a possession of his memory, it will be safe to wager that four of them are poetry.

There is poetry and poetry. Some of it is mere words, full of sound and fury signifying nothing. But there is also some poetry which puts into catching and striking and holding verse the little happenings and mishapings, the daily vocations and mistakes, the faulty ideas and words, and this common life; which shows us our shortcomings and misdoings; which laughs at and with us over our little vanities and weaknesses. Are you going to turn a contemptuous back on the kindly criticism and the gentle satire, the homely truth, the lesson that goes straight to the point, the wit and the wisdom, the fun and the earnest—because it rhymes?

But there is a man who is a master of this kind of expression, who sees all human things in all kinds of lights and relations that escape us, and knows how to put them into verse with a snap to it.

Edmund Vance Cooke.

He sings songs for everybody, at all seasons and in all moods; always sound and wholesome, full of good common sense, or brimming over with healthy fun; "Impertinent Poems" to prick our vanity and laugh us out of our dearest weaknesses— "Rimes to be Read" by everybody at their great pleasure and profit— tender love songs, poems for and about children, such as few poets have written or can write.

It is hard to say in which vein Mr. Cooke is at his best. You will have a chance to judge for yourself, for he will appear at the Chattanooga.

HARDING FUNERAL TRAIN ENROUTE TO WASHINGTON HIGHWAY WHERE NEW PRESIDENT TOOK OATH

The president of the United States sitting on the front steps of his father's farm home in the village of Plymouth, Vermont. The upper picture, showing Calvin Coolidge and his wife and his father, John C. Coolidge, was taken the day before President Harding died. Below is the farm house, and the barns, skirting the road where the grass does service as sidewalk; the place has been in the Coolidge family for generations. It was in this house that the new president, roused from sleep in the middle of the night by the news of Mr. Harding's death, took the oath of office, administered by his father in his capacity as a notary public.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE WILL NOT CHANGE THE HARDING POLICIES

WILSON WILL TAKE A PROMINENT PART IN HARDING FUNERAL

Audience with Over 100 Newspaper Men Serves to Reassure Nation a Strong Man Is Chief.

RULES AT HOTEL

Washington, Temporary White House, Willard Hotel, Aug. 4.—"All matters of international policy and government will stand temporarily as they are," President Calvin Coolidge announced today in his first conference with newspaper men.

No changes will be made nor any public announcement of the policy of the new administration until after the funeral of President Harding has been completed.

The President does not believe that any public announcement of the business of the new government should be made at this time. Things stand as they are until contrary announcements are made. This includes Mexican recognition and negotiation of all diplomatic affairs.

Mr. Coolidge is determined to carry on without change to such an extent that for the time being Brigadier General Sawyer, personal physician to President Harding, and George Christian, his secretary, will continue in their offices.

The President has given no thought as yet to men to fill their places.

A proclamation will be issued by the President this afternoon concerning the death of his former chief.

A hundred newspaper men crowded the north room at the Willard hotel for Coolidge's first press conference.

The President met each of them at the door, greeting each by name, though he knew. He answered questions readily but he was determined that the impression should not be gleaned that any transition in government was to take place because he had succeeded to the Presidency.

Washington, Aug. 4.—President Calvin Coolidge today officially took over control of the government of the United States. In a temporary White House on a floor of the New Willard hotel, the President performed the first function of his new office.

The first official act of his administration was to approve the funeral arrangements for his chief, who died last night. Mr. Coolidge summoned all members of his cabinet who were in town—Secretary of State Hughes and Postmaster General New.

It was decided that the body of the late President will be met by the new executive and members of his official family and escorted to the White House when it arrives here Tuesday.

State Funeral Wednesday. The state funeral will take place on Wednesday when the body of Mr. Harding will be taken down Pennsylvania avenue, where he rode a little more than two years ago to his inaugural, to the capitol, where he will lie in state in the great rotunda.

The display that goes with the funeral of the chief of a state will be seen when the cortege moves from the White House to the capitol. There will be a military band playing the funeral march and an escort of soldiers.

HARDING IS FIFTH PRESIDENT TO REST IN SOIL OF OHIO

Washington, Aug. 4.—President Harding will be the fifth chief executive whose body has found a last resting place in the soil of Ohio.

William Henry Harrison, the ninth President, was the first to be buried in that state, interment being made at Fremont; Garfield at Cleveland and McKinley at Canton.

Four of the five died in office, Garfield and McKinley falling before assassin's bullets and Harrison dying from bilious pleurisy after serving only one month of his term.

PITTSBURG GROCER KILLED BY BANDIT WHOM HE WATCHED

Pittsburgh, Aug. 4.—Charles W. Riley, 38, was shot and killed early today by a burglar, whom he had surprised in his grocery store on Herron avenue here. Riley had slept behind the counter on watch for the burglar, who had entered the store several times lately and rifled the cash register.

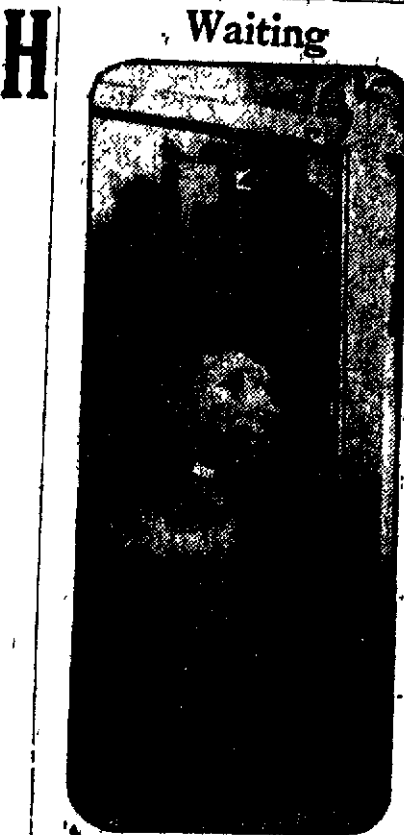

The burglar escaped.

Helen Rosebud returned to her home in Madera after spending some time with friends in Clearfield.

W. F. Powell left today to visit with his children Johanna and Billy, who are in camps at Chautauqua Lake.

Miss Katherine Berry has returned from a vacation at Chautauqua Lake.

W. M. Fairwell, a former resident of Penn twp, now living in West Virginia was a Clearfield caller yesterday.

Watchful waiting, one-time famous policy at the White House, has been revived by Laddie Boy, President Harding's Alredale. He watches every arrival at the executive mansion, hoping it's the absent president.

FRIDAY, AUG. 10TH COOLIDGE NAMES AS A DAY OF MOURNING

Washington, D. C., Aug. 4.—President Calvin Coolidge today issued his first proclamation, issued today, declared Friday, Aug. 10th, a day of national mourning for the late President, Warren G. Harding. On that day, he said, the people should gather in the respective places of worship and engage in ceremonies fitting the occasion.

It was also ordered that all executive offices of the Government be closed next Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday.

Plans for a community wide memorial service for President Harding began to take shape in Clearfield immediately following receipt of the sad news of his demise. These plans are being worked out at a meeting held in the Directors Room of the Clearfield Trust Company, the participants being Burgess Kittelberger, representing the municipal government and the heads of all the religious organizations in Clearfield.

As was the case when this Nation was called upon to mourn the tragic deaths of the martyred Garfield and McKinley the date for public memorial services for the nation was fixed by the President to succeed the martyr and the same procedure will be followed in this case. When the date has been decided upon the entire motion will gather in a joint assemblage in every community to pay that last tribute to the dead leader of the Nation.

Whatever churches and organizations may plan, their individual tribute cannot supersede a community service in harmony with a national event. This is it necessary for this gathering this afternoon to plan for Clearfield's memorial. The date fixed by National proclamation will be the date for the service. This date has been set for Friday, Aug. 10th. Watch The Progress for further announcement.

MORSE AND SEVEN ASSOCIATES ARE FOUND NOT GUILTY

Washington, Aug. 4.—Charles W. Morse, ship builder and financier, charged with defrauding the Shipping Board on war time contracts, was acquitted by a jury of the District of Columbia court here today.

The three sons of Morse and four other men, held under the same indictment, were also acquitted.

SERVICES FRIDAY

En-route with President Harding's funeral train, August 4th.—Bearing as its precious freight the Nation's illustrious dead, shrouded in sorrow and weariness, the special funeral train carrying President Harding's body to Washington was speeding across the country today.

Almost every mile of the way from San Francisco has furnished evidence of the Nation's sorrow. All through the night as the train plunged on at a speed equalled only by overland flyers, men, women and children could be seen standing along the tracks, the men barcheaded and all wearing a crushed and reverent look.

The flag draped casket rested in the same car in which the late President journeyed across the continent on his way to Alaska. At its head and foot the guard of honor—two soldiers and two sailors—stood rigidly at attention.

As the Presidential funeral train crosses the full breadth of the beleaved country millions will observe its passing. In the lighted car is a profusion of flowers. There is a simple rosewood coffin with Warren Gamaliel Harding inscribed on a silver plate. It is guarded by soldiers, sailors and marines, chosen from the attachment that accompanied the President on the Henderson.

Although the train will not pause for ceremony, it will proceed at a slower pace through towns and cities. Only for operating requirements will it halt before reaching the capitol.

The crowds that stood in the night were obviously moved for no sound came from them. They stood in mute respect as the train with the flag draped coffin in the last car went by. In the same car was the brave and tragic figure of Mrs. Harding, facing still several days of need to keep fighting her grief, still too much in the public eye to be allowed to go away by herself with her sorrow.

It was impossible for Mrs. Harding to rest as she needs to rest. Her nerves are too unstrung for quiet sleep; her heart throbbing too painfully to the new wound to permit her the repose that she should have. But her spirit was unbroken, her poise unimpaired. Mrs. Harding gives new evidence almost every hour of the magnificence of her character. Other members of the party, worn out by grief and loss of sleep rested today.

Sparks, Nev. Aug. 4.—President Harding's funeral train passed through here, moving slowly through barcheaded crowds gathered on the station platform at 6:00 a. m. today. The train was preceded by a pilot engine and coach, which will run fifteen minutes ahead of the funeral train across the continent.

Hazen, Nev. Aug. 4.—The special train bearing the casket of Warren G. Harding passed through Hazen at 7:35 a. m. today.

Practically the entire population of the little city turned out and lined the tracks as the special swept through. The train was running exactly on schedule.

San Francisco, Aug. 3.—An avenue of mourning, stretched tonight across a land of sorrow. It began here at the Golden Gate and it ended in the Nation's capital, and over it, for four days and four nights, will travel a funeral train bearing the body of President Harding.

When the train, draped in black, drew out of black-draped station here tonight, there began the saddest transcontinental trip in the history of the Nation. There have been funeral trains bearing the bodies of chief executives of the republic before, but no such train ever passed over so long a route.

Ninety and a half hours will be required for the trip, when it is ended at 1:20 p. m. Tuesday, the body of Warren G. Harding will carry a white shroud in the White House where he served the American people for nearly two years.

PATROL TO CATCH WE

By A. P. HOLLINGSWORTH
(United Press Staff Correspondent, Harrisburg, Pa., Aug. 4.—) Police of other elements to enforce prohibition in Pennsylvania may lead to heading bootleggers by means of a "highway patrol" charged with responsibility of regulating traffic on public highways.

A corps of 125 men will be placed on the roads of the state shortly to augment the limited number of state police and help relieve the burden of law enforcement of the constabulary.

Although the highway patrol has limited powers, as state police they might assume duties such as those of search and seizure as well as arrest.

Governor Pinchot finds that the highways are the avenue of crime as well as pleasure and peaceful pursuits. To catch the bootlegger, there must be an adequate force on the roads that lead in and out of the state.

In the event that his law enforcement program fails because of an inadequately manned police force, it was explained, the highway patrol may assume some of the responsibility of checking the liquor traffic.

Plans are being laid now by the governor and his law enforcement officers, the attorney general and the superintendent of state police, to conduct an intensive campaign against bootlegging and crime of every description.

"I am pleased with the progress already made, and I am confident that the crooks and criminals who are fighting are going to lose and lose completely. I would be a poor American."

WEAVER RECITAL A MUSICAL TREAT SOLOIST WAS FINE

The organ recital given in Trinity Methodist church by Mr. F. W. Weaver, assisted by Mrs. Edna Dufon, was a most enjoyable event.

Clearfield people had the pleasure not only of hearing an artist of great ability, but one of their own boys who by his untiring perseverance and hard work has reached a point in his career where he is a source of joy to himself and all who hear him. Mr. Weaver's own composition, "The Squirrel," and his arrangement of "Joy to the World," which Mrs. Dufon sang beautifully, were much appreciated. In all Mr. Weaver's numbers his technique was flawless and his vocal work amazing. The Bach "Fugue" being beautifully rendered. We are deeply indebted to Mr. Weaver and Mrs. Dufon for a wonderful musical evening and it is the earnest wish of all Clearfield people that Mr. Weaver have continued success in his chosen work.

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

People tell us there is nothing in this "luck sto y," but do say, however, "there is a tide in the affairs of men, which, if taken at its flood, leads on to fortune." "Silent Cal" Coolidge, our President, was certainly waiting at hand when "opportunity" knocked at his door at three or four short years ago. Because of that courage handed down from generations before, some of whom braved the dangers of an uncharted sea and bleak New England shores as Mayflower Pilgrims, Coolidge took a man's grasp of an intolerable condition growing out of a misguided policeman's strike in Boston and when he handled that emergency in a manner which won for him the plaudits of the nation, "Silent Cal" discovered to his undoubted amazement that the tide in his affairs had not only set in, but that he had launched his boat at its very crest and it was bearing him on to that fortune every red-blooded American boy dreams of—the Presidency of the greatest nation under God's sun.

Swept into the vice presidency a few months after the Boston episode by popularity gained by reason of his "safe and sane" handling of that situation, created by "Lady Luck" to make Cal Coolidge, in three short years, by the breaking of another link in the chain, he is elevated to the place of the greatest power in the hands of any one man, and takes up the onerous burdens of that existing position with the best wishes of one hundred and ten million men, while every loyal American says to himself "thank God for the calibre of man that was chosen for Vice President in 1920." A world of opportunity is at his hand, may he again prove his mettle by solving the many problems he will meet—right.

Acting on the idea that shade trees should be useful as well as ornamental, Salem, Oregon, planted walnut trees for shade. The result is that the city has 1,600 fine walnut trees along her streets, which produce thousands of bushels of delicious nuts. A walnut tree will sprout from the seed in three weeks after being planted. This ought to be a good hint to other towns.

Rural mail carriers cover 1,191,000 miles of highway in delivering letters and packages to residents of the United States living in places remote from towns, villages and cities.

Thirty millions of individuals receive their mail by way of the rural free carrier service, according to an official statement issued by the Post Office Department.

The statement shows that the United States free delivery system puts more persons in direct daily contact with central communities than any other postal system in the world.

The system has been extended in the last year to serve an additional 350,000 persons. Thousands of new carrier routes have been added.

Merchants and manufacturers are anxious to have the government make further extensions, especially with respect to the delivery of parcel post matter. Through the present system, they point out, nearly one-fourth of the nation's population is brought into close contact with every section of the country despite the fact that that group of the population is located in districts with which communication and transportation is otherwise slow. Farm life is being made more and more attractive, it is emphasized, at a time when migration to the cities has developed into an economic problem of national import.

Approximately 6,500,000 families live on rural mail routes. Illinois leads all other states as a beneficiary of the system, having 2,629 routes, covering 70,380 miles. Ohio ranks second with 2,540 routes, covering 63,318 miles.

BIG BUSINESS IN LOUISIANA

Farm Bureau Federation Has Saved Members More Than $75,000 in Three Months.

The purchasing department of the Louisiana Farm Bureau federation, through G. A. Foss, purchasing agent, has done business totalling more than $200,000 for the first three months of 1923, and has saved farm bureau members in Louisiana more than $75,000.

The co-operative purchases made include 5,500 tons of acid phosphate.

Mr. Foss now has a deal on for several hundred thousand rice and potato bags for the use of Louisiana commodity associations, and it is expected that a considerable saving will be made over the general market price.

HIGHWAY PATROL TO CATCH WETS

can if I doubted them," Governor Pinchot told the United Press in stating his position on enforcement. "We have made a good start and the state is moving along with us. There is much ground yet to be covered, but I have three years and a half left to cover it," he said.

The effort of the governor to make Pennsylvania dry has been slow and tedious. It was marked at the very beginning with reverses by the legislature and from elements opposed to drastic measures.

Figures compiled by the state police for the first five months of "dry" enforcement under the Pinchot policy show nearly 2,000 arrests. Yet of the number only 241 cases reached the stage of court sentences after going through the process of action by grand juries. One hundred of the 241 were fined and others given sentences averaging from two to six months.

The first step in laying up the state was the abolition of the saloon obtained from the legislature upon the insistence of Governor Pinchot. Tax bootleggers were next to be dealt with. Pinchot said he would run them out of the state. This has been a difficult because of the lethargic attitude of the judiciary over which he had no control. Elimination of the saloon was a factor in encouraging bootlegging that he did not an illegal sale of liquor.

Cooperation of law-abiding agencies was sought and the assistance of county and local authorities enlisted. The response to this request has been negligible. Support has been promised by the state W. C. T. U. in raising a $255,000 fund for the enforcement of law which was denied by the legislature.

Governor Pinchot maintains that prohibition deserves equal attention with the other laws of the commonwealth and the nation by enforcement agencies. He insisted that the money asked of the assembly for this purpose be placed to his credit for the "enforcement of all laws." He would not permit it to be earmarked for prohibition and thus his appropriation was lost.

Pres. Coolidge Will Not Change Harding Policies

Members of the Supreme Court, cabinet members, diplomats and representatives of every phase of Washington's official life will be in the presidential train.

At the capitol the catfalgue will be placed beneath the draped dome in the rotunda where other of the nation's dead have lain in solemn state. Soldiers and sailors will stand guard around the casket. After the funeral services, the people will be permitted to pay their last respects to the dead President and to lay wreaths beside him, and at 4 o'clock the body will be removed to the funeral train and started to Marion, Ohio, for interment.

Rush White House Repairs. The executive offices of the White House are torn up in the process of remodeling. The work is being rushed so that Mr. Coolidge may go to upon his return from the funeral at Marion, Ohio.

There is much speculation and a great deal of wat'ful talk as to what policy the new President will follow when he really starts to work. For the last time he will be a pal his predecessors.

Proactive Changes. Mr. Coolidge, it is felt, will certainly sponsor the World Court, farm credit on a safe policy and a conservative administration of law. He will have no Vice President. The office will be vacant until the next election. Senator Curtis of Kansas, the Republican whip, will probably be the administration candidate for the chair of presiding officer in the Senate.

The possibility that Attorney General Daugherty, and possibly Secretary of Commerce Hoover, might leave the Coolidge cabinet is being freely discussed. Daugherty has wanted to retire for some time.

Coolidge Light Eater. Washington, Aug. 4.—President Calvin Coolidge arose at eight o'clock today. He breakfasted at 10:30 after sending for his Secretary, Edward J. Clark.

The President ate for breakfast a shredded wheat biscuits and cream and coffee. This is Mr. Coolidge's favorite breakfast.

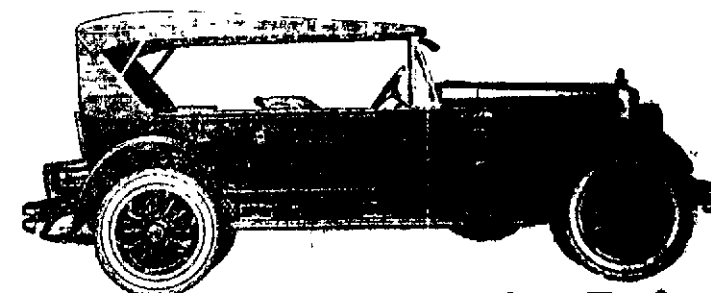

Europe Studies "Cal." London, Aug. 4.—Having flooded the cables with messages of sympathy for Mrs. Harding and ordered state mourning for America's dead President, heads of European governments turned their attention to what the foreign policy of the United States will develop into under his guidance.

London morning papers devoted many columns to Mr. Harding's passing and speculation regarding President Coolidge today, and any scrap of information about the "silent man" is eagerly sought.

Renovating Rug. If a rug has developed a hole, place a piece of canvas at the back and choose some coarse wool to match the prevailing colors, darning them from underneath to the top, leaving little loops on the right side. The rug will take on a new lease of life.

Of forty manufacturers of quality cars the two cars leading in sales are priced at $2885 and $2685; the Paige at $2450. What difference is there to justify the extra price? Check Paige points against these competitors—and you will realize that never before has $2450 bought such a car.

131-Inch Wheelbase 5-Foot Springs

Paige has a wheelbase of 131 inches—providing roomy comfort and roadability. Riding ease rarely equalled is assured by rear springs more than 5 feet long. Check against costlier cars! Paige leads in comfort.

More Power for Weight

Mark Paige piston displacement—compare it with others. Here is reserve power for all needs. Paige weight is 3850 pounds, yet the ratio to piston displacement is only 11.4 pounds per cubic inch. This low ratio is why Paige out-performs its competitors—climbs hills easier and at lower speeds—gets away faster. Compare it in the chart—nearly two pounds less per cubic inch—15% more ability!

Easy Handling

With a driving range of 2 to 70 miles an hour in high there is small need of gear shifting, though it is done without clash or misgiving. Steering is easy for the frailest hand. You wouldn't compare a car with three wheels to a car with four wheels, in relation to their prices. So Paige must be compared as to equipment with what its competitors would cost you if similarly equipped.

What Is Equipment?

Note the twelve items of equipment in the chart above—all things which you would eventually buy for any car. Paige has them all! One competitor has only three of them—and the other five—least costly items. Calculate the cost of this equipment, and see how much more you get in the Paige.

Why Paige Can Be Sold at $2450

Tremendous volume on our smaller car—the Paige-built Jewett—reduces overhead on Paige cars to a negligible amount. This saving makes the Paige price possible. With the Jewett—Paige builds twice as many cars as either competitor shown on the chart. Under any other conditions Paige with its present high standards could not be sold for less than $3000.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS GATHER AT MONTREAL FOR CONVENTION

MONTREAL, Aug. 4 (United Press)—The largest convention ever held in the history of the Knights of Columbus will informally commence tomorrow (Sunday).

From the United States and other parts of the organization in Canada, the United States, Newfoundland, Mexico, Porto Rico, Cuba, the Philippines, Panama and Hawaii, thousands of delegates and visitors are arriving in Montreal. The demands for hotel accommodations indicate that many thousands of visitors, apart from the delegates will attend. Special excursion parties are being run from all parts of the United States and Canada.

George H. Davis, M. P., supreme director of the K. of C. in Canada, estimates that the convention will draw approximately ten thousand visitors, in addition to the qualified delegates representing the 2,000 and more councils of the order.

The convention will be held under the auspices of the Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty of Philadelphia called the meeting of supreme board of directors. Sunday the board will continue to meet and on Monday the convention organization process will get under way for the formal opening on Tuesday.

The opening will be preceded on Tuesday by one of the largest parades ever held in Montreal when the members of the order will march in their regalia to the church of Notre Dame, the largest of the continent, where the solemn religious Mass that opens all K. of C. conventions will be celebrated.

Following the mass the convention will be formally opened after reception by the ecclesiastical and civil authorities of Montreal. Supreme Knight James A. Flaherty will be in the chair when the convention is called to order at the Mount Royal Hotel.

The deliberations of the convention will occupy three days, the 7th, 8th and 9th, the first session of the second being taking up the day the day after the opening of the convention.

The most important matter to come before the convention will be the vast K. of C. educational and hospitalization work, the $1,000,000 Italian work being undertaken under the auspices of the Holy See, the institution of a boy movement under K. of C. auspices, and other activities of a general welfare character. Reports of supreme officers of the order's growth and achievement during the fiscal year ending June 30 will be read on Tuesday.

The convention will be preceded by a banquet on Monday evening sponsored by the Montreal Chapter to the supreme officers and directors of the order to which many prominent men have been invited including Prime Minister Mackenzie King of Canada, Commander Owsley of the American Legion, and high church dignitaries of the Province of Quebec. Archbishop Gaucher of Montreal will deliver an allocution in Notre Dame to the Knights.

is expected that people will gather along the route the entire way and with uncovered heads pay not only their own personal respects but those of the whole American Nation.

Widow Approves Plans
The arrangements for the trip to Washington were made by the grieved members of the President's party today while literally thousands stood about the hotel or walked slowly through the lobbies. The plans all were submitted to Mrs. Harding for final approval, and she was able to give them her attention, for she was bearing up well under the load of sorrow.

Mrs. Harding obtained some rest last night, retiring at 1 o'clock and sleeping fitfully until morning. Throughout the day she moved about the presidential suite always, according to those who met, more mindful of others than of herself. She remained steadfast to her determination made last night not to break down, but whether she could continue to do so during the long trip was only time will tell.

Supporting Mrs. Harding in withstanding her sorrow, were messages of sympathy from all parts of the world. Telegrams poured into the hotel all through the day. They came from two former Presidents, Woodrow Wilson and William Howard Taft; from members of the cabinet, from governors and mayors; from rulers of foreign countries and from men unknown beyond the borders of their own countries.

Bearing Up Under Blow
Late in the day, Colonel George Palmer, past president of the Mystic Shrine, called to offer the sympathy of San Francisco Shriners and Mrs. Harding stood for five minutes talking to him, showing the effects of her grief only in a few tears that trickled down her cheeks. This was but one example of how courageously she was standing the strain.

Much of the work of making plans for the future was done by George L. Christian, Jr., who had served as Mr. Harding's secretary for years. Mr. Christian was in Los Angeles when the Chief Executive passed away, having gone there to read to the Knights Templar of Hollywood what proved the President's last public expression, and he was hurriedly carried to San Francisco by special train. The four cabinet members in San Francisco—Secretaries Hoover, Wallace and Work and Attorney General Daugherty—assisted in this task.

The schedule for the funeral train to Washington, as announced prior to its departure follows:

Leave San Francisco Friday, August 3, at 7 p. m.; arrive at Ogden Saturday, August 4, at 9:05 p. m.; arrive at Omaha, Monday, August 6, at 2:15 a. m.; arrive at Chicago Monday, August 6, at 3:30 p. m. and arrive at Washington, via Baltimore & Ohio, Tuesday, August 7, at 1:30 p. m.

The train itself is much the same as that which left Washington on the afternoon of June 20, carrying the President, full of hope, on the trip across the continent to Tacoma, Wash., where the chief executive, Mrs. Harding and members of their party boarded the naval transport Henderson for the voyage to Alaska.

The private car Surber, which carried the President then, and from which he greeted thousands in rear-platform addresses, had been set aside to carry his body back.

FRUIT GROWERS IN MOTION

Organization Formed in Michigan With Capital of $100,000—$25,000 Paid In.

Co-operative fruit growers' associations of western and southwestern Michigan have organized a state fruit exchange, to be known as the Michigan Fruit Growers, Inc. Its authorized capitalization is $100,000 with $25,000 paid in at the start. It proposes to affiliate with the National Federated Fruit Growers, Inc.

Headquarters of the exchange are to be in Benton Harbor, with branch offices at other points where the volume of business may warrant such office.

The exchange looks forward to affiliation with the Michigan state farm bureau under the farm bureau's commodity plan of control. Such affiliation will enable the exchange to secure for its members in a more direct way the seed, purchasing, traffic, publicity, legislative, wool and organization services of the state farm bureau and to co-operate with the other great commodity exchanges in exchanging sales services and in getting together on matters of common interest.

OWSLEY HONORED BY FRENCH

Award of Order of Merit of Union Nationale des Combattants to National Commander.

Alvin Owsley, national commander of the American Legion, has received the award of the Order of Merit of the Union Nationale des Combattants, composed of more than a million French veterans of the World war. Only fifty other men have been awarded this decoration.

Presentation was made by Charles Bertrand, secretary of the French organization, who was named president of the International Veterans' Federation at its last gathering in New Orleans. The latter organization, which represents fifteen million veterans of allied forces, has begun to wield considerable power in international affairs. The American Legion is the member body in this country.

The decoration is in the form of a handsome bronze medal, suspended from a ribbon with a ribbon of the French society's colors. Accompanying the medal, as a personal memento from M. Bertrand, was a bronze plaque, indicating his unalterable affection for Commander Owsley and the American Legion.

TEXAS POST GIVES CONCERTS

Regular weekly concerts by members of the American Legion have been given by the Paris (Tex.) post of the organization for a period of nearly nine months. Legion artists have visited smaller nearby communities to present special musical programs, and weekly concerts have been given in the city. Recently the artists gave a complete program which was broadcast from a well known radio station. The post maintains a band, an orchestra, a drum corps and a quartet. Further service is rendered the community by a free medical clinic established for the poor by the Legion men.

and a half years and then in the Capitol, where, as a senator from Ohio, he represented his native state for six years.

Funeral services will be held in the Capitol rotunda late next Wednesday after the body has lain in state all day, and then will begin the final journey to Marion, O.

Funeral Next Friday

Arriving on the morning of Thursday at Marion, among the home folks the President loved best, the body will be given the tender and loving care of neighbors and friends until the following day when funeral services will be held and a National day of mourning observed. Then it will be laid to rest in the Marion cemetery.

San Francisco was afforded the first opportunity to pay respects to the dead leader when the body was taken from the Palace Hotel, where it had rested since the end came last night, to the Third and Townsend street station. But before the long trip across the continent is ended, almost countless other communities will be allowed the privilege, though to a lesser degree, for the train only will be stopped to change engines and for other operating purposes. The "silent man" is on the job.

What a world of confidence and peace of mind is inspired by the thought expressed in that sentence.

Having recovered from the shock of President Harding's death the next thought of the average citizen was, "who will lead us?"

So little had been heard of our Vice President. His principal bid for consideration when he was made the nominee three years ago was that he had made a record as Governor of Massachusetts and particularly because of his handling of the Boston police strike. Coupled with this was an endorsement by Harding, already the nominee for the presidency.

It will be recalled that President Harding repeatedly paid high tribute to Calvin Coolidge and, although previously Vice Presidents had little to do but preside over the Senate, President Harding took the Vice President into his confidence, invited him into all cabinet meetings, accepted his advice and made his decisions after conferences with the Vice President.

Mr. Harding had often expressed the belief that the Vice President should be permitted to become as familiar with the problems of government as the President himself and all but said that the time might come when death might place him in the President's chair. It is now reasonable to believe that Mr. Harding had just such a possibility in mind when he gave his approval to Calvin Coolidge as his running mate.

Calvin Coolidge took to the stump and campaigned with clear-cut logic and argument. Each day he grew stronger until when election day rolled around people voted as much for "Silent Cal" as for Mr. Harding. Then he took his job and began to say what he had said in public or in the news, although it was known that he was familiar with the counsel and guide—every activity of the Harding administration.

Now that the time has come when this silent man must shoulder the responsibility of being the President of these United States, it is an occasion for thanksgiving. First, because he is the type of man he is. Second, because Mr. Harding was foresighted enough to select him and broad visioned enough to school him.

We do not know what kind of a President he will make, but he ought to be better than one selected by politicians and certainly better than one of the many who are so anxious to put themselves forward by howling calamity and setting themselves up as saviors.

He is fifty-one years of age, strong, vigorous and able. He works hard and talks only when necessary, but when he talks it is in language that is understandable and directly to the point.

"Silent Cal" is on the job.

WHAT HE SAID OF HIS WORK

(From Harding's speeches during the presidential campaign.)

My whole job as president will be, first to get the people of the United States together in better understanding, and then to get the nations of the world to a friendlier understanding of a workable world league.

I believe the people want an ordinary man as president, being a little tired of supermen and the ways of such.

Washington, Lincoln and Roosevelt are the three greatest men in American history.

McKinley was a great figure; the biggest contribution he made to our country was to wipe out nearly all of the sectional feeling. If God is with me I will try to obliterate all that's left.

A mighty good guide in political life is the "feeling" of the people. No man could have worked up as I have worked without getting it.

The people of this country are as sound at heart as a good red apple. They always come back to the sane, sound ways of business and of government.

ODELL HAUSER'S COLUMN

This has been "Old Home Week" in Harrisburg. Some of our leading statesmen have been away from the seat of government in foreign parts—such as Milford and the Great Lakes—but this week they have returned. What brought them back was the by now well-advertised punitive expedition State Treasurer Snyder is conducting into the state payroll, and more particularly that part of it which lies closest to the heart of the Pinchot administration.

The preliminary steps in the great battle of the code were outlined in these paragraphs last week, the writer adapting himself to the role of war correspondent as well as in him lay. There is no excuse for anyone's not knowing that the battle rages on, and since the battle cry has sounded, the warriors are hastening to the field of combat. Hence the "Old Home Week."

The Governor has deserted the quiet glades of Pike County or the asphalt pavements of Harrisburg, even though he had hoped to dwell with the pike and pickerel a while longer. Auditor General Lewis, the great mystery of the present situation, cut short his vacation trip over the Great Lakes and ended his way to where his books and records speak to him in accents of reassurance.

State Treasurer Snyder, commander-in-chief of the insurgent army, now wears his shoe leather out on the gravelled walk of Capitol Hill, instead of traversing the environs of Pottsville in a limousine.

It all comes under the head of tough luck when it happens in August, and particularly in August of a year when there is so much to campaign under way and everybody ought to be at home as much as possible, seeing that the folks in the county elect the right kind of commissioners and such so that the cause of good government may triumph.

The mile may play when the cat's away, but "Old Home Week" in Harrisburg makes it necessary for the mice to get down to business. In other words, the chiefs being present, the whole army of subordinates, not to mention the camp-followers, is right there too.

This may be the cause of one of the phenomena I have observed this week in talking to some of the pillars of our state government. This may be expressed by calling it the week of gossip. It is disturbing gossip, the kind that generally tags along with a period of pressure and tenseness in political circles.

And so I have heard a series of horror-stories that would make your eyes pop. I am not going to tell them all, and I am not going to mention names, because I imagine they are somewhat exaggerated. But I will reflect some of it, because it is undoubtedly a real element in the situation which now prevails, and an element which will undoubtedly find a reflection in some of the actions that are taken.

The stories are mostly concerned with difficulties within the Pinchot administration. One of them, and the one which may soonest be seized by the ruff of the neck and projected into public attention, has to do with the head of a department of state government which happens to be tied into the code difficulties.

Rumor hath it that this department head is getting deeper and deeper into hot water with the governor's office, and not only with the governor's office, but with outside elements influential in having secured a seat in the cabinet for this particular official.

It would appear that through conflicting opinions given by this official to various persons interested in a certain subject, and then by failing to adopt a definite and well-informed attitude when advice on this subject was asked in the governor's office, this department head led Mr. Pinchot into a course of action which has since been regretted.

The tendency of all concerned, including the administration, will, of course, be to keep the incident under cover and seek to minimize it. It is too early at this stage of the administration's history to think seriously about changing commissioners or secretaries, as I believe we must now tell them to be in style with the code. But sooner or later we may hear of a change in this department.

There are other bits of gossip alleging internal difficulties in the administration. One department head, who is less known to the public life of Pennsylvania than some of the others, is said to have announced that unless he secured more independence of action in conducting the business under his charge, he would get out. Another member of the administration, though not the head of a department, who was very prominently identified with the drafting of the administrative code, is said to have notified those in authority already that he had set the date for severing his connection with the state government. If this occurs, it will probably not be until after the present battle of the code is settled by adjudication of the courts.

There are other tales of trouble. But we need go no further into them. Internal dissensions in an administration are by no means of rare occurrence. They are often produced by subordinate figures in the administration. There is every evidence that the present difficulties are largely the product of that condition. Some of the department heads do not get along any too well with one of the Governor's principal advisers. Others are jealous of his power.

These matters generally adjust themselves as soon as they become sufficiently marked to attract attention and acquire a nuisance value.

The principal unfortunate aspect is that they come just at the time when the administration is in the midst of its necessity to meet State Treasurer Snyder's attack on the code.

So far this week the great battle of the code has produced the "Old Home Week" at Harrisburg, even if it has produced nothing else. So probably the hotel keepers like it anyway.

The week started with Mr. Snyder under notification by the Attorney General that the latter's legal advice must govern him in his actions, to which Mr. Snyder had replied that he couldn't see it that way. On Monday Auditor General Lewis joined Mr. Snyder in his position, arguing that the Attorney General was wrong when he asserted the acts of 1915 and the code bind all state officials to follow his legal opinion. Messrs. Snyder and Lewis evidently think they are entitled to go out and hire their own lawyers, and they intend to do so.

Attorney General Woodruff's notification to them is generally taken as merely a technical step on his part to complete his case toward asking the courts to compel Mr. Snyder to pay the salaries that Mr. Snyder refuses to pay.

The whole matter still hinges on when the Attorney General brings his action in the Dauphin County court to mandamus the State Treasurer.

The beginning and middle of the week passed without Mr. Woodruff's having gone into court. State Treasurer Snyder is said to have prepared a whole flock of injunctions against officials performing their duties under the code. When mandamus meets injunctions the doings will begin. Let's wait and see.

LOOK OUT

By EDWARD THIERRY

N E A Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.

Look out for the gilded mining man.

Warnings—financial storm warnings—have been issued by Edward A. Schwab, chief investigator of the National Vigilance Committee, that oil stock schemes are being abandoned in favor of mining promotions.

"The public," says Schwab, "is always canvassed in waves. The oil wave is waning, and the mining wave is beginning."

"A wholesale exodus of oil promoters has occurred in Texas, where Fort Worth was the headquarters of the stock-selling boom. Exposures by the National Vigilance Committee and the Better Business Bureaus had these results:

"Nearly 100 were indicted by federal grand juries in the Fort Worth district.

"Prison sentences aggregating more than 25 years have been imposed on six defendants in the first three cases brought to trial.

"Fines in excess of $30,000 have been assessed in addition."

Now, warns Chief Agent Schwab, the "wise one" are drifting into the mining promotion game.

"A flood of literature," he says, "is beginning to cover the country, dangling 500 per cent dividends before the public eyes in gold, silver and copper mine developments."

"Good mines and real developments are being injured by those who play the sucker list. Experienced business men are not easily caught by the funds of operators, but the victims are usually widows, school teachers, clerks, laborers and stenographers whose savings are caught in shady notes."

Chief Agent Schwab estimates that $500,000,000 was lost during the past year in fake stock schemes.

"Life time and markets are being injured by financial artists," he says. "The United States treasury alone estimates that $400,000,000 worth of Liberty bonds have been exchanged for two thousand securities."

Get-Together Spirit

A good way to make people love one another and to teach them to combine for general improvement is to give them a chance to get together for a harmless fun but will refresh their minds and soothe their nerves, and if these are not the principal purposes of the church they are at least among its objects. Progress Editorial For Women

THINGS, OUR GOLDEN CALF

By Florence Davies

Talk about "sermons in stones," why sometimes there's a whole volume of sermons in a single sentence!

"And so I'm going away and let her get a divorce," said the younger of the two men, whom I passed on the street the other day. "She's met another guy with a yacht and an automobile and an aeroplane and everything, and I'm not going to buck her."

So that was it, was it? She had gone after Mammon and he wasn't going to fight her.

What a way to put it! He wasn't going to fight her, he said. One would have thought it was the other man he wasn't going to fight. You would have expected him to say he wasn't going to fight him, whoever he was this "other guy" with his yacht and his automobile and his aeroplane, which you took with a grain of salt.

But evidently the injured husband didn't exactly blame this "other guy." He seemed to realize that all was fair in love and war, or maybe after all, he recognized the fact that the other man, plus all his worldly possessions, was more than a match for him. But as a matter of fact, he really wasn't either of them that he had a fight. It was the automobile and the yacht and everything, it was just "things" that were against him the things that this man had.

"She's not a guy with a yacht and an automobile and everything." It was the "everything," the things, the fast car, the speed boat, the dinner parties and the bouquets and all the rest of the things, things, things, that men with money can buy.

That is what this chivalrous chap who was going to step out and let her have her way, had to fight, not "him" or "her."

Just stop and argue it out for your self. Was it "her" that he had to fight the real her that he used to know, the girl herself whom he had loved and married, and who once loved him?

Of course not, if it had been the same old girl, he wouldn't have had to fight for her, for she would have wanted him as once she did. It was this new woman who couldn't resist things, the things that money will buy. Neither was it the other man that he had to fight.

How much of a chance would this other guy have had, when of his motor car and speed boat and his gay dinners and gifts of jewels or flowers? Suppose he had been poor, poorer than her husband could ever have given her anything but a little ride in a borrowed tin limo, or a couple little moonstone ring? No, the man who was going to give up wouldn't have had to fight "him."

Yes, it was "him" he was fighting—possessions that so often possess their owners, master their wills and paralyze their sense of value—the "things" of the world before which we all bow down and worship, in a certain motion and misguided so, we are bowed down and worship the golden calf.

Maybe the calf war isn't really golden, you know. But it is symbolic.

Take the "it" may go on swiftly rolling wheels, a car on gently cutting waves. And there are girls aplenty who seem to wonder the meaning of a man's life and are choosing other a life, a friend or a life partner.

LESSON FOR AUGUST 5

MARY MAGDALENE

LEADER TEXT—Luke 8:1-3, John 8:12-17.
GOLDEN TEXT—"Our soul waiteth on the Lord. He is our help and shield." Psalm 124:8.
EXPOSITION MATERIAL—Mark 16:7-11; Luke 8:1-3; John 8:12-17.
PRIMARILY TOPIC—How Mary Magdalene showed her love for Jesus.
JUNIOR TOPIC—How Mary Magdalene showed her gratitude to Jesus.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—A Woman's Grateful Service.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—Mary Magdalene, Saved and Serving.

I. Mary Saved (Luke 8:1, 2). While Jesus and His disciples were reaching throughout the villages of Galilee, Mary and certain other women heard the good news of salvation and were saved. Her spirit was cast out of her. Mary had been possessed with seven demons. The number seven indicates the completeness of her affliction. Her affliction usually accompanies demon possession. Doctor Johnson says: "It is a cruel error to suppose Mary Magdalene with the sin of women of whom Luke has just been writing. Mary had suffered from demon possession, as here stated, but here is nothing in the gospel to indicate that she had ever been a woman of notorious evil life." He who is possessed in this false imagination that may rescue homes for fallen women is named unjustly, "Magdalene."
II. Mary Ministering (Luke 8:3). She, with certain women who had been saved from Satan's power, out of heart of gratitude looked after the comfort of the Lord and His disciples. How women must have been in easy circumstances, as they were able to buy food and other necessities and, obedient, looking for Jesus and His disciples. (Three women were the foremost of that large company of saved women who have ministered to the Lord through kindness to His ministers. How precious would be this world without the ministry of godly women.)
III. Mary's Goodness (John 10:41, 42). After the men and disciples had forsaken the Lord a group of faithful women remained at the cross, among which was Mary Magdalene. Others, angered, prompted by natural affection, but also lingered out of gratefulness for salvation from Satan's bondage.

IV. Mary at the Empty Tomb (John 20:1-18).
I. Mistaken Tears (11-13). She had come to the tomb to weep and to pay "last" to the body of her Lord. She was weeping over what she regarded as a tragedy. In spite of her love and faith, she was in a state of confusion. If she had known what was revealed to her a short time afterward, she would not have thus wept. She was weeping because the tomb was empty, when the real cause for weeping would have been the Lord's body in the tomb. How many times we rank our hearts over misunderstanding. The fact that a living body had slipped out of the tomb in dead of the night and the body in it should have occasioned joy. The empty tomb is the Christian's ground for hope.

2. The Unrecognized Master (vv. 14, 15). She was within sight of the living Lord, yet mourning for Him. Let us look in the right direction and we shall see our Lord as He is, and we shall see our own way turned into joy. The woman who did not recognize the Lord as that He did not appear as she thought He should. Many times our preconceived notions prevent us from seeing Jesus.

3. Restraint of Familiarity (vv. 16, 17). The full meaning of Jesus' words can be forbade Mary to touch Him. She was in the right direction and we shall see our Lord as He is, and we shall see our own way turned into joy. Pinchot Proclaims Sunday Memorial Day For Harding

The United States Government has appointed August 5 as a day of prayer in all churches of the state "for the welfare of the Nation and the commonwealth and for those who mourn the death of President Harding."

Governor Pinchot said of President Harding:

"His kindness of heart, extensiveness of mind and unselfish devotion to the public service gave him a peculiar right to the heartfelt tribute of the whole people."

"In His infinite wisdom, God has seen fit to move by death the President of the United States," the proclamation said. "Through his departure, the Nation has lost at the very summit of his career, a chief magistrate whose personal qualities have endeared him to his fellow citizens, and whose unexpected death has brought deep grief to all our people."

"The profound sympathy of all our people goes out to Mr. Harding in her overwhelming bereavement."

"With humble submission to the Divine Will, and in order that proper respect may be paid to the memory of Warren G. Harding, late President of the United States, I, Gifford Pinchot, governor of the commonwealth of Pennsylvania, do hereby appoint Sunday, August 5, as a day of prayer, and recommend that the people assemble in their respective places of worship on that day to unite in prayer to Almighty God for the welfare of the Nation and the commonwealth, for the comforting of those who mourn, and in remembrance of one whose kindness of heart, calmness of mind, and unselfish devotion to the public service gave him a peculiar right to the heartfelt tribute of the whole people."

FORM EASTERN FEED POOL

Farm Bureaus and Farmers' Exchange Officially Join Hands for Buying Grain.

Massachusetts' farm bureaus and Eastern States Farmers' exchange will officially join hands in promoting and establishing cooperative buying of feed and grain throughout the state. Major attention will be given the 1923 grain pool. The various county farm bureaus will select local agents in territory not already organized. A large increase over last year's tonnage is prophesied.

Saving in Cotton Pool.
John T. Orr, executive committee man of the American Farm Bureau federation and president of the Texas Farm Bureau Cotton Marketing association, states that the Texas pool of cotton this year is operated at a saving of $5,500,000 to its members.

Earth Grows Sooner Now.
In the early days of its history the earth grew rapidly by the addition of meteoric matter. It is still growing in the same manner, scientists say, though scarcely to an appreciable extent for the mass of meteoric matter added yearly is reckoned to be only 20,000 tons. In the course of ages the larger planets have swept up practically all the fragments of the original disc, and the only available source of supply of meteoric matter is to be brought by comets.

Persistent Bees.
For 20 years a swarm of bees have occupied the back of the school clock at Mitchell, England, and on at least one occasion a resident of that town. The swarm had been thought of as some years ago and the evidence the bees had made was common knowledge, but each year they returned and they even bore a hole through the clock.

Real Events.
"Do any events of importance ever occur here?" peevishly demanded the hypercritical young man from Kansas City. "Well," calmly replied the landlord of the Peoria tavern, "morning, noon and night happen here, with an untiring regularity, and some of our home folks 'pear to regard them as events of considerable importance."—Kansas City Star.

Origin of Pottery.
Pottery probably first came into service as a protection to the vessels made of gourds, shells, basket work of reeds, young branches and other materials, and finally, because the vessel itself became of an appreciable quality, instead of the flatter, earlier type.

Not Exactly.
"Now that funds have practically ceased in this region," said the spectated tourist, "I presume you have, figuratively speaking, beaten your pistols into pruning hooks?" "Nope," replied Mr. Gap Johnson of Rumpus Ridge, Ark. "In the first place, we don't raise prunes yet, and in the second place you never know when a dead feud will begin to set up and take notice."—Kansas City Star.

Dig "Hours-Cleaning" Job.
One of the biggest cleaning jobs ever undertaken was the dusting and renovating of the British Museum library. Two hundred and fifty men were kept busy, for 14 months. Redecorating the dome and walls of the great reading-room took 250,000 leaves of benton gold.

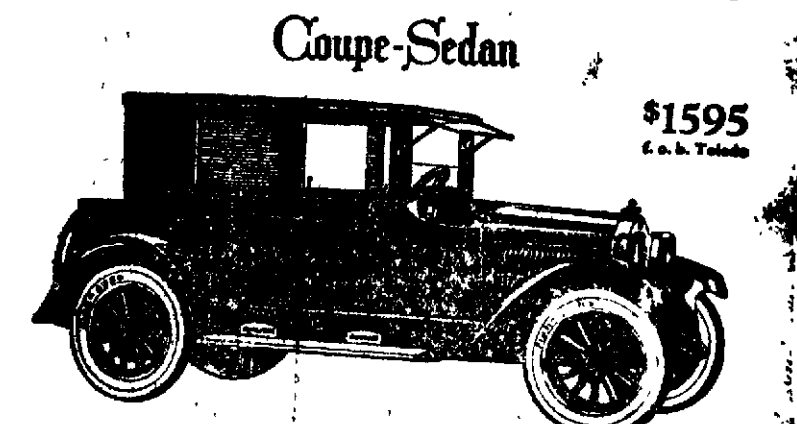

Agricultural Education.
Agricultural education is one of the essentials to the betterment of country life. The prevailing thought in this movement is to add dignity to farming by placing it on the high plane to which of right it has ever belonged.—Exchange

This country store—typical New England general store and postoffice—is doubly distinctive. In this building in Plymouth, Vermont, President Calvin Coolidge was born on the 4th of July in 1872. And it was in this store, possessing the only telephone in Plymouth, that the official news of Mr. Harding's death was received from San Francisco. As vice president, Mr. Coolidge daily tramped between his father's farmhouse and the store to get bulletins on the sick president's condition. Inset shows the president.

CAN "GRABBAG" JOB BRING SUCCESS?

A Dozen College Graduates, All Specialists, Discard Their Life Work and Plunge Into New and Untried Jobs, Just to Find Out

BY ALEXANDER HERMAN

By NPA Service.

NEW YORK, July 28.—Can a law make a good undertaker? An engineer a dancing movie actor? A dentist a railroad hand? Or a man good only for a particular job for which he has been specially trained?

A dozen college graduates, successful in their professions, are casting aside the jobs they trained themselves to do just to find out. For one year they will work in fields quite foreign to their callings to try out this experiment, which began as a joke in a Los Angeles club several months ago.

Of the men, Le Roy Ellsworth Grooms, a mining chemist, who recently had charge of a large cyanide plant in Nevada, has already plunged into his new work.

The mining chemist is now a movie actor. And the others are looking for jobs.

We were discussing the fact that a college man is fairly good for the work that he has been trained to do, says Grooms, "when one of us said it was all wrong, he thought it could do any job. We laughed.

A few months ago a similar discussion took place in a New York club. The men were serious. A dozen of us, including three lawyers, two brokers, two engineers, an author, a dentist, a chemist and a capitalist, decided to change their callings just for fun.

"So we took twelve slips of paper wrote down a dozen different kinds of jobs—actor, folk, farmer, lumberjack, automobile mechanic, actor, rancher, bull-fighter, contractor, electrical engineer, undertaker, movie actor, clerk and sailor—and pulled them from a hat.

"I drew the job of motion picture actor. I had never acted in my life, but I was a bargain, and I had a lot of time. So I went to it at once.

"It wasn't a very exciting job. I was shifted around from one agency to another, from one studio to the next. After four weeks I got a chance to act a small part in a studio on Long Island.

I was told to be in a scene with a woman. Some difficulty was experienced in the studio on Long Island. I was told to be in a scene with a woman. Some difficulty was experienced in the studio on Long Island.

Grooms gets $10 a day, while the others get $1300 a month on the mining job.

"But the fun of the new work," as Grooms says, "is in the fact that we are all doing something new and are all having the fun of it."

THE "SUMMER FUR" AND THE FUR TRADE IN GENERAL

The United States the world's greatest fur consumer. Our people spend $300,000,000 a year for furs. One-half of the finished product is produced from furs drawn from other parts of the world.

The "summer fur" which has in the past half dozen years helped to relieve the monotony of the mid-summer period is now in its most successful season. With the latest developments in its use, upon collars of light weight summer garments and a continuation of the form in which it had already been utilized the 1923 season will probably "break the record" of the short period since the summer fur became a noticeable feature of the life of the American cities. For it is only about six years, says the Trade Record of the National City Bank of New York, since the development of the fashion and its use is still chiefly confined to the United States and to the city in which the fashion originated, Paris.

To what extent this new fashion of the wearing of furs in mid-summer has participated in the enormous increase in the sum paid for furs by the people of the United States is difficult to determine with extreme accuracy. Experts, however, express the opinion that "summer fur" still forms but a small proportion, perhaps 10% of the hundreds of millions of dollars annually paid for furs by the people of the United States, for the sums which our own people pay for furs do actually run into the hundreds of millions.

The imports of furs in all forms France, Germany, the Scandinavian countries, Japan, Australia, New Zealand, Argentina and India, against an average of about 25 millions a year prior to the war, even in the tropical as well as the temperate and frigid areas of the globe, and we do ransack the globe for furs, since our official records show importations from no less than 85 countries, colonies and islands, though in a few cases, notably Great Britain and France, a considerable part of the millions preparing furs for the consumer.

dollars valuation of furs imported is that in the country from which they are sent to the United States and are therefore exclusive of the freight and tariff duties, and also remember that the 160 million dollars worth reported by the 1921 census is the factory valuation of the goods, it is quite apparent that the sums annually paid by the final consumer will run into the hundreds of millions, and may perhaps cross the 300 million dollar line in the calendar year 1923. The big increase in recent years is due in part to larger quantities of furs used and in part to higher prices. The growth in the use of furs is illustrated by the fact the U. S. census reports show that the capital of the factories engaged in the production of fur goods increased from 30 million dollars in 1914 to 81 millions in 1919. New York and Chicago are the chief fur markets of the United States.

Certainly there can be no doubt of the enormous increase in the sums paid for furs, since the total output of the fur factories of the country has grown from 27 million dollars in 1899 to 160 millions in 1921, while the value of the imports has grown from an average of about 25 million dollars in 1920 to about 90 millions in the fiscal year 1923, which ends with the month of June.

Where do they come from these hundreds of millions of dollars worth of furs used by our people? About one-half from our own forests and plains and mountains and States, for the sums which our own people pay for furs do actually run into the hundreds of millions.

The art of dressing and dyeing furs which is now in use in the United States is superior to that being practiced in other countries and there has been no complaint in any quarter of the use in the United States of injurious dyes in the nearly one hundred million considerable part of the millions preparing furs for the consumer.

of dollars worth sent to us are drawn from foreign countries and their colonies and re-exported to the United States, the world's largest importer and consumer of furs.

What are the principal classes of animals which supply the furs utilized in the United States? The furs of the various classes, the marten family, Russian sable, the mink, the squirrel, karakul, the Persian lamb, Australian opossum, the raccoon, the skunk, the hedgehog, the otter, while even the domestic cat is not entirely exempt from the scramble to obtain material with which to meet the constantly increasing demand of fashion. Most of the "summer furs" are supplied by the foxes, the martens, the squirrel, the mink and the Russian sable. A considerable quantity of furs are now being used for light weight wraps and coats almost entirely of the foreign product, largely karakul, China sheldons, Mongolian lambkins, rabbit skins and ermine.

Is this increasing demand of the world for furs materially reducing the number of fur bearing animals or likely to do so in the near future? Not to an extent yet appreciable, and it seems probable that any material shortage in the product from natural sources will be followed by an enlargement of the "fur farming" industry which has in recent years made limited contributions to the world's fur crop, which is now estimated at probably 250 to 300 million dollars a year in the form in which it leaves the hands of the trappers and hunters, who in the Fall and Winter months ransack the forests and plains and mountains of the globe to obtain material with which to meet the growing demand from all parts of the world and especially that of the United States.

The art of dressing and dyeing furs which is now in use in the United States is superior to that being practiced in other countries and there has been no complaint in any quarter of the use in the United States of injurious dyes in the nearly one hundred million considerable part of the millions preparing furs for the consumer.

Curwensville's Own Column

Mr. J. H. and wife, and Ralph H. and wife, of North West, Pa., for a week's visit among relatives and friends in and around Curwensville. Both gentlemen are connected with the Clearfield brick plant.

Miss Jennie Holt, daughter of Mr. H. Holt, Clearfield, Pa., is confined to her home by a slight attack of diphtheria.

The announcement of President Harding's death yesterday morning was a gloomiest discovery for many. Mr. Collins, Rev. Cameron, Rev. Conly, Prof. Grant Norris, and Paul Robinson assembled in one of the rooms of the High School building to form a law for holding some sort of memorial service on the day and hour of the President's burial. It was decided that the American Legion was the proper organization to take this on hand and arrange all the details. For all of the minutiae of the town will be asked for a ten minute talk in eulogy of the dead. If it can be arranged some prominent speaker will be engaged for this occasion.

Mr. and Mrs. William Daub, of Ridge avenue, left yesterday for Oriskany, Hamilton county, where they will attend an "old home" gathering and picnic today. The section in which they will visit is the former home of Mrs. Daub. "Old" expects to return home in a day or two, but Mrs. Daub will remain for a week or longer.

Mr. Thompson of Pittsburgh, who has been visiting with friends and former acquaintances in town for several weeks returned to the Smoky City yesterday. Mr. Carpenter, his father, has been quite ill for several months and is now at Atlanta City trying to regain his health. The Carpenter family expect to go to Florida during the fall months and return through the rigor of a Pennsylvania winter season.

Mr. Emma Mitchell, of LaRoe, O., is a guest in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. Spencer, Ridge avenue, for the present.

If there is much more surveying done on Thompson street the road will feel up to almost half as much as a good section of the paving.

Protesting the weather is favorable, an open air concert will be given at the Park on Sunday afternoon. A grand ball, by the Boys Marine Band of the place.

A big Yellow Dog meeting will be held in Moose hall on Monday evening at which time a class of forty will be admitted into the ranks of dogdom and assigned to positions.

George Means, of Main street, who has been suffering from a long illness, is now on the verge of recovery. He is now at the home of his wife and who has suffered from the same illness.

the pain therefrom, is recovering slowly.

Blasting on the state highway above town has broken a number of windows in houses on Ridge avenue.

There will be services in the Lutheran church on Sunday evening at 7 o'clock.

Beet crops have the effect of stimulating the soil. Observations made abroad show that after beets have been grown on the land there has been an increase in the yield of wheat of 500 bushels per acre, 150 bushels of oats, and 177 bushels of corn. Little have in crowded and the net income has been raised as high as 40 percent.

FLAPPER WIVES KILL OFF GROGERS AND DELICATESSEN KINGS GET RICH

BY JOSEPHINE VAN DE CRIFT
NEA Service Staff Writer

NEW YORK, Aug. 4.—Flapper bride are killing the corner grocers and putting cents in keepers in Millionaires' Row.

The old-fashioned housewife, who used to cook three square meals a day and never used canned goods except what she put up herself, is passing. In New York, at least—where there are almost as many delicatessen shops as taxicabs, and grocery stores go out of business almost daily.

"Kitchenette apartments are to blame," say the brides.

"Not only young wives, but old ones too, have the delicatessen habit," say shopkeepers.

The modern bride doesn't peel the potatoes over a hot fire. Instead, she works or goes to the movies. And on the way home she stops in at the delicatessen where she orders two slices of pinky-pink ham, two stuffed mushrooms and a pint of pot to go. She and George eat of the delectable morsels every night.

The result, of course, is a motor car for the delicatessen keeper, but doom for the corner store man. Only a few days ago one of the most exclusive grocery establishments in the Columbus Avenue district closed.

"Don't blame us," says Mrs. Roy Mangum, bride of a very old apartment dweller. "Our husbands work downtown. In order to make expenses we have to live in tiny apartments. The kitchenette, when there is one, is essentially off the living room and takes up about as much space as an old-fashioned sewing table."

"Who wants to cook there? Who could? Eating out all the time is expensive. The delicatessen is our only salvation. Even a mother-in-law at the meal, though she evolved for a one gas flame and a one burner.

The delicatessen is really coming in disrepute, says Mrs. Charlie Heartfield. "At least it is of my friends are business women. They are right on working after marriage. They have no time to prepare elaborate meals and yet they want a home. The delicatessen takes them over many a rough time."

But Rich, for nearly 30 years leading the delicatessen district, cannily turned himself for the changing conditions.

"Twenty coming 20 years ago," he says, "I didn't get servants any more. Living alone, I had to do it. People have to live in hotels or these little shoe box apartments. I don't blame the women for not wanting to stay cooped up."

A few blocks away on the other side of the street S. S. Hepp, delicatessen owner, beamed joyfully.

"Nineteen years ago," he says, "I started my first store at 64th street and Broadway. There wasn't another one till you got uptown to 110th street and there wasn't another one downtown till you got to 14th street and Sixth avenue."

"Now look at it. A delicatessen in every block except when there's two in a block. My company itself owns 16 stores."

"Sure, the brides did it. Suppose a fellow earning $30 a week marries a girl making $25 a week. They can't live on his salary. They both have to go on working. Well, she hasn't time to cook. They buy their things in the delicatessen."

ment of the Illinois Agricultural Association. Much of the success of the association is due to the efforts of G. P. Butterfield for the past five years county farm adviser and Alfred Abertson the present manager.

Local station meet a much more efficient organization than would one central group to which all farmers are members. Towns are located at the following: Boone, Clinton, DeWitt, Hamilton, Jasper, Johnson, Lincoln, Madison, Marshall, Miami, Monroe, Newton, Perry, Pike, Polk, Pottawatomie, Quincy, Rock, Scott, Shelby, St. Louis, Tipton, Van Buren, Warren, Wayne, Woodbury, Woodruff, Wright, York, and Young.

Each of these towns have their own officers and are represented on the governing committee of the association. No man can purchase more than five shares of stock in the company, and every stockholder must be a producer.

General satisfaction in their organization is being expressed by the large majority of the membership in the co-operative. They receive from 75 cents to $1 more per hundred pounds for their milk than was the case prior to organization. With this new incentive of an excellent market in their own co-operative association, milk producers tributary to the Stephenson county plant have shown a new interest in dairying and the industry is being rapidly located in the territory.

FILLED MILK IS PROHIBITED
Law Passed in New Hampshire Forbidding Sale and Manufacture After Hot Fight.

A law prohibiting the manufacture and sale of filled milk has just been enacted in New Hampshire after a strenuous fight. In addition to this anti-filled milk measure, a law has been enacted prohibiting false advertising of dairy architecture. Credit for the passage of these measures goes to the New Hampshire Farm Bureau Federation.

Chances of Longevity.
Dr. Eugene Lyman Buck, physiologist and author, says, "The average person does not stand the best chance of living long. The man or woman who weighs 20 or 30 per cent below the average has the best chance for long life. It is safe to say the average individual reaches the ideal build at thirty. If he can keep near that build for the rest of his life, he increases his chances of longevity."

13 SECONDS FLAT!

Can You Change A Tire As Fast As A Champion Can?

ATTENTION, automobile owners (including flivvers).

Remember the last time you had a disgusting blow-out, and you had to get out and change the confounded tire all by yourself?

How long did it take you? How many minutes—or hours!—of plain and fancy cursing?

Look at Charles Paine, of Philadelphia. Changing a tire is child's play to him. He claims he's the world's champion tire changer.

His record, prying off the old shoe and slipping on the new in 13 seconds flat. Seconds—not minutes! Thirteen seconds—flat. A flat 13 seconds to get rid of a flat tire.

If you can juggle tires in anything like such speedy time as that you can qualify for a contest to take the championship away from Paine.

There are 13,000,000 automobiles in the United States—13,000,000 drivers who know how (or ought to know how) to change a tire. Paine claims he's the fastest tire changer among 13,000,000.

How about you?

Can Clearfield produce a champion who can beat Charles Paine's record?

CO-OPERATIVE MILK MARKETING COMPANY

Illinois Organization Has Experienced Big Growth.

When successful co-operative dairy marketing organizations of Illinois are mentioned, the name of the Stephenson County Co-operative Milk Marketing Company immediately comes to mind. Organized in February, 1921, and opening up for business the following April, the co-operative has experienced a remarkable growth and now has almost 1,000 farmer-members. The company is capitalized for $75,000 and has a $300,000 milk plant at Freeport.

During the second year's business just closed the sales of the company totaled $518,304.55, or an average of $43,197.04 per month. The running expenses were $31,742.57 and $411,164.56 was paid to patrons for products and in the 7 per cent dividend for stock. A sinking fund of $12,704.72 was retained.

A total of 13,129,706 pounds of milk and 1,704,000 pounds of cream was handled by the plant during the year. The following is an itemized account of the sources of sales:

Product	Sales of Total	Per Cent
Butter	$253,661.75	49.0
Milk	147,928.25	28.5
Cheese	46,082.48	8.9
Cream (sweet)	51,622.09	10.0
Buttermilk and skim milk	4,632.47	0.9
Miscellaneous sales	16,474.90	3.2
	$518,304.55	100.0

Butter, which easily constitutes the largest single item of sales, is sold under the brand name, "Vita Gold." It scores 90 per cent or over and commands one cent above the top price on the Chicago market.

Organization of the milk marketing company was effected by the Stephenson county farm bureau in co-operation with the dairy marketing department.

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

A Letter from Mrs. Ward Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her

Springfield, Ohio.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound proved a splendid medicine for me before my fourth child was born. With the first three I had been sick and weak, and had sick headaches twice a week. I couldn't keep enough food down to do me any good, and my work was left undone many a time. My sister-in-law told me to take the Vegetable Compound when I began to have the same old dreadful sickness and headaches and was so worn out. Since then I have only had two headaches, had a good appetite and scarcely lost a meal. I have a fine, healthy baby girl who has never had a sick day. The nicest part is that I am healthy, too. It did me a lot of good, and if I should ever have another baby I will take your medicine at once."

Mrs. BESSIE WARD, 1027 Park Avenue, Springfield, Ohio.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent medicine for expectant mothers, and should be taken during the entire period. It has a general effect to strengthen and tone up the entire system, so that it may work in every respect effectually as nature intends.

EFFICIENCY IN FIRE DEPARTMENT SERVICE

Unique Zone Plan Originated in Chester County, Pa.

To secure the greatest possible efficiency in fire department service for the rural districts of the Chester county (Pa.) farm bureau has originated a unique fire zone plan.

The actual conception of the plan was probably started as a result of a report made to Maj. C. M. Wilkins of the state bureau of fire protection from the Chester county farm bureau for closer co-operation.

At a meeting of farmers Major Wilkins urged organization with townships as the unit. The first township to get organized was Westtown township, which was the most completely organized township of any in the county for farm bureau work.

The principal factors of the fire zone plan started by this township, and subsequently developed for the remaining townships, were dependent upon the cooperation of the following agencies:

Fire department service represented by the Chester County Firemen's association and the borough council of West Chester.

Bell Telephone company.

Township supervisors. Roads arranged in the zone directory, under their supervision and contributions made to the fire department.

State police under state bureau of fire protection. Fire department service under state police.

All lines are reported to the zone director and to the nearest fire department. The zone director gets the information and directs the fire department to arrive at the location of the fire. This plan is turned over to the zone director, because he is trained to law his territory better than it is possible by a dozen or more amateur telephone operators.

Once the fire bells are on the ground they are in a position to decide whether extra equipment of any kind is needed, or the state police would be notified.

The importance of neighborhood service and the value of state police comes more and more evident every day by reason of the fact that hundreds of automobiles block fire department service and bring strangers who are not slow in taking advantage of the chance to loot the premises of the fire victim.

The West Chester fire zone includes all or part of 11 townships in Chester county, and two townships in Delaware county, all points of which are within ten miles of the fire department.

GENERAL COMMITTEE BUSY ON FIREMEN'S CONVENTION WORK

Last night's meeting of the Executive Committee of the Clearfield Firemen's Association who have in charge the convention was a lively one.

The committee, which met in the evening at the home of Mrs. J. H. White at Law's Drug Store and he will lead a delegation around to the visiting firemen.

This year's convention should eclipse anything that the district has ever attempted. Clearfield should play the most glorious host to the visiting firemen.

You are Clearfield. Are you going to do your part?

Cement of Wood Ashes. Wood ashes and common salt, made into a paste with water will stop cracks in masonry and fill holes in plaster.

The committee have contracted for the decoration of the city by a decorating firm of state-wide reputation. They will present a gala appearance to the visitors.

The decoration scheme includes the visit Expo. Hall at the park where the business session of the convention will be held.

The committee in charge of the convention program are going steadily along with their work but find that the response is lagging somewhat.

The price per page in the program of the committee was very reasonable—less than the price of one of the suits of clothes many of the firemen have lost during the past year while they were working in the line of duty.

This program is something that the delegates take home with them after the convention. Copies of this program are also being mailed to the various companies in the district previous to the convention. This means that people in other cities and towns are going to judge

Clearfield before they come. We want them to form a great opinion of this city. This means that everybody will have to do their bit toward making this part of the convention a success. The forms for the program are positively close on Monday evening and if you have not yet bought a page or if you have bought a small space and feel that you must buy more, get it now with it. It is White at Law's Drug Store and he will lead a delegation around to the visiting firemen.

London! Fog, dank, drizzling, penetrated the shivering figure of the escaped prisoner. Every shapeless form, looming through the yellow mist spelled—danger! But on—he lurched, burning with hate, set on revenge against the man who had railroaded him—while—

Sunshine—Love—

Flooded the English countryside, bathed the untarnished soul of Joan, who exulted in its pure white beams. She knew nothing of the lives in the fog, souls seared with the brand of prison. She believed in this man, hating and hated by the whole world, until—

Night—Fury—

Swept down upon her, engulfed her hopes in a torrent of mad, swirling passions! Did she save this man from himself—or—?

DO YOU LIKE POETRY?
IF YOU DON'T, YOU WILL

Many people don't like poetry—or think they don't. Of course, there's a reason for what they think they think—they haven't heard or read the right kind. And yet, if you ask the man in the street to tell you the names of any six pieces of literary composition which are a possession of his memory, it will be safe to wager that four of them are poetry.

There is poetry and poetry. Some of it is mere words, full of sound and fury signifying nothing. But there is also some poetry which puts into catching and striking and holding verse the little happenings and mishappenings, the daily vocations and mistakes, the faulty ideas and words, and this common life; which shows us our shortcomings and misdoings; which laughs at and with us over our little vanities and weaknesses. Are you going to turn a contemptuous back on the kindly criticism and the gentle satire, the homely truth, the lesson that goes straight to the point, the wit and the wisdom, the fun and the earnest—because it rhymes?

But there is a man who is a master of this kind of expression, who sees all human things in all kinds of lights and relations that escape us, and knows how to put them into verse with a snap to it.

Edmund Vance Cooke.

He sings songs for everybody, at all seasons and in all moods; always sound and wholesome, full of good common sense, or brimming over with healthy fun; "Impertinent Poems" to prick our vanity and laugh us out of our dearest weaknesses— "Rimes to be Read" by everybody at their great pleasure and profit— tender love songs, poems for and about children, such as few poets have written or can write.

It is hard to say in which vein Mr. Cooke is at his best. You will have a chance to judge for yourself, for he will appear at the Clearfield

OUR MILK

Look over the husky kiddie around your neighborhood. If they are bottle babies, one out of every ten of them are walking advertisements for the goodness of our milk.

When your family physician tells you how to modify the milk for the first feeding and then tells you how to strengthen the mixture to keep pace with the growth of the youngster, the youngster begins to grow stouter and fatter as he goes along.

And another thing. The youngsters fed with our milk have less bowel trouble during the summer months and are less liable to sickness because our milk has come through the pasteurization process.
